OPEN FIGHT ON REED PLAN FOR SOLDIER BONUS

Senator New, Indiana, Attacks Amendment to Tax Bill as Unconstitutional

MANY IMPORTANT AMENDMENTS STILL TO BE ACTED UPON

Expect to Bring Measure to Final Vote by Latter Part of the Week

WASHINGTON. — The republican fight on the Reed soldier bonus amendment to the tax revision bill was opened Monday by Senator New republican, Indiana, who raised the point that the amendment was unconstitutional.

Returning to its more than month old battle over the tax revision bill, the senate had to dispose of these major proposals before it could hope to bring the measure to a final vote:

The corporation capital stock tax with an amendment by Senator Lodge proposing to credit holding companies for the amount of this tax paid by their subsidiaries.

Consider Excise Tax Repeal

Excise taxes, many of which are proposed for repeal under the compromise revision bill.

A new method of taxing insurance companies other than life.

The Smoot manufacturers' sale tax.

The Reed amendment to continue excess profits tax with the proceeds used to put through the five-way soldier bonus plan.

The Smoot proposal to exempt from taxation income received by foreign trade corporations and foreign traders from business done in China and the possessions of the United States.

Revive Fight on Tax Rate

In addition there was promised a renewal of the fight over the corporation income tax rate, the inheritance tax section and several others which tentatively have been disposed of.

Senators on both sides were agreed that this constituted a formidable program containing elements which might bring on prolonged debate, but they hoped that the bill could be put through this week. It was the plan of the republican leaders to get a vote by Wednesday or Thursday at the latest and they were prepared to resume night sessions if necessary.

Senator Penrose of Pennsylvania, in charge of the tax bill, still is of the opinion that senate and house conferees can reach an agreement within two or three days.

There are promises of another fight in the senate if the bill comes out of conference with the maximum income surtax rate cut to around 40 per cent. There have been predictions that such a cut would be made as house leaders are somewhat firm in their demand for the 32 percent rate agreed on by the house.

Senator New said the Reed amendment proposed to tax one class of citizens for the benefit of another and that this at least was in violation of the spirit of the constitution.

Reed Defends Plan

Arguing that the amendment was not in conflict with the constitution, Senator Reed told the republicans that they would have to vote on the

COOLIDGE SPEAKS FOR HARDING AT OPENING SESSION

Declares Executive's Realization of Nation's Obligations to the Veterans

WILL EXERT EFFORTS TO MAKE COMPLETE PLANS FOR RELIEF

Also Declares for Reduction in Tax Burdens

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—Nothing is closer to the heart of President Harding than to make the relief for incapacitated war veterans absolutely complete; no man not in the service has a deeper appreciation of what that service meant, of the sacrifices made by the veterans, of the obligations incurred by the country and no man will go further to minister to the true welfare of those who have been in the service and their dependents, than the president of the United States, Vice President Coolidge told the national convention of the American Legion here Monday.

"He will never sacrifice you for his own welfare. He will do all that can be done to prevent the need of your again sacrificing yourselves for your country's welfare," Mr. Coolidge said.

Reviews Relief Work

The vice-president reviewed what has been done so far toward relieving the incapacitated veterans; paid high tribute to the valor of America's armed forces and declared the legion represented a "new national consciousness."

He said every relief must be sought and applied to the taxation situation, sketched the country's financial obligations and added that he knew of no present service that could be performed for those who served the nation more important than to reduce "the great drain upon the resources of the people." Such a reduction, he said, would bring about a return to permanent prosperity.

He made a plea against sectionalism, which he said had been largely wiped out by the fusing forces of war and predicted a great future in the nation's life for the American Legion.

A New National Consciousness

"The opportunity to make this nation one, the sacrifice which made this nation one, was of your day alone," he said. "All the streams of that great spirit are gathered up in you. You represent a new national consciousness. You represent the consummation of those great forces coming into action in the early days of this century which not only made America more American, but made humanity more humane. The hope of this nation which more than ever before corresponds to the hope of the world, lies in your power to minister to that spirit, to preserve that consciousness and to increase those forces.

"The work of Washington was not completed at Yorktown, the work of Lincoln was not completed at Appomattox. They live in our institutions, one in the constitution, which his efforts caused to be adopted; the other in the amendments which his sacrifices caused to be ratified. Your work was not all done on the sea or on the battlefield of France.

"In recognition of the solemn obligation to you and your countrymen of economy and peace, a conference of certain great powers called on the initiative of our president, is about to assemble in Washington. It proposes to search for a solution of problems arising from the convergence of many different nations in the Pacific and to provide by mutual agreement for a limitation of armament. It proposes no burden. It promises relief at home and a better understanding abroad. If it can be accomplished its blessings will be reflected from every fireside in the land."

THREE-DAY SESSION OF LEGION FORMALLY OPENED ON MONDAY

Diaz and Jacques Already Present, With Beatty, Foch and Pershing to Arrive Later

MEMORIAL SERVICE HELD FOR LATE COMMANDER OF LEGION

Tribute to Galbraith Feature of Morning Session

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—Messages of greeting from their comrades of other countries delivered by prominent visitors from other shores were outstanding features of the program Monday of the American Legion convention beginning a three days session.

General Armando Diaz of the Italian armies, General Baron Jacques of Belgium and Vice President Coolidge, representing President Harding, were speakers and speakers Monday.

Admiral Earl Beatty of the British grand fleet was expected to arrive during the late forenoon, and in the evening were to come Marshal Foch of France, commander in chief of the allied armies, and Gen. J. J. Pershing of the American expeditionary forces, acting as Foch's aide.

The proceedings began with songs by Mme. Schumann-Heink, whose voice cheered American boys far from home during the darker days of the war.

Then John G. Emery of Grand Rapids, national commander of the legion, called the convention to order and the invocation was pronounced by the Rev. John W. Winzer of Chattanooga, Tenn., national chaplain of the legion. Addresses of welcome were made on behalf of Kansas City and responses given by legion officials after which committee reports were requested.

One of the features scheduled for the morning session was the appearance of Vice President Coolidge who was to address the convention.

Memorial to Galbraith

A memorial service for the late F. W. Galbraith of Indianapolis, who was killed in a motor car accident last June, was the noon-time feature of the convention, while at the afternoon session, General Diaz and General Jacques were to address the veterans, Major Gen. Lejeune of the U. S. Marines was another afternoon speaker. Additional committee reports were in prospect for late in the day to be followed by greetings extended the legion on behalf of the American Federation of Labor, G. A. R, United Confederate Veterans, Spanish Veterans, the British Legion, the Great War veterans of Canada, and similar bodies. In the evening Admiral Earl Beatty will speak.

Yanks Up All Night

Convention hall was astir early with delegates. Bands, and drum corps were blaring out military music and a haze of tobacco smoke lent an Indian summer touch to the bright colored decorations.

The "buddies," apparently in no way discouraged by a night of "milling," shouting, singing, street corner reunions, sidewalk dances and endless marching and countermarching, began filling the hall shortly after 8 o'clock.

Many Spectators Present

Thousands of spectators came early and filled the balcony and gallery.

Representatives from Alaska, canal zone, Hawaii, the Philippines, Porto Rico, Turkey, Africa, France, Spanish Honduras and the British Isles, raised their standards on the floor in addition to the delegates from every state.

Women in Red Cross workers costumes here and there among the spectators were conspicuous in their white dresses with crimson crosses on cap and sleeves.

Schumann-Heink Sings

Lifting the American flag high above her head, Madame Schumann-Heink opened the convention by singing the "Star Spangled Banner."

Giving the invocation the Rev. John Winzer of Chattanooga, Tenn., national chaplain asked Divine guidance for the legion in bearing on the torch of service and patriotism, dropped by those who fell in the war.

Mayor Cowgill of Kansas City welcomed the legion in the name of the city and Dr. Harry F. Parker, state commander of the legion in Missouri, made an address of welcome.

The convention got quickly down to business. The report of the committee on permanent organization recommending that ten national committees with representation from each state be maintained, was adopted.

Speeches Limited

Speeches on the convention floor were limited to five minutes when the delegates adopted the rules committee report. Until voting by delegates will not be permitted.

At the request of Commander Emery, the convention arose and stood

THOUSANDS PAID BY STATE AS BOUNTIES ON WILD ANIMALS

Wolf and Fox Only Animals on Whose Heads a Price is Set by State

PLENTY OF CHANCES FOR GRAFT IN COLLECTION OF BOUNTIES

Scalps of Other Animals Offered in Place of Wolves

MADISON, Wis.—Two hundred thousand dollars is a great deal of pin money, but that is the approximate amount which has been added to the incomes of farmers, school boys, and professional trappers in this state within the last five years for bounties paid on wild animals. Of this amount the counties and the state have paid an equal share.

The wolf and the fox are the only animals on which the state will pay a bounty at present. Each county sets the bounty that it will pay upon these animals, and the state will pay an equal amount. A wolf in Grant county, taken in the months of December, January or February, is a real prize for the total bounty then is $80, on March 1, his value shrinks to but $2.

Most of the counties offer a bounty of $10 on wolves. The rest of the counties pay up to as high as $25, which is the figure set by Oneida county. The usual amount paid for wolf cubs is six dollars.

Were the bounty the only reason for hunting the fox, that sly fellow would have little to trouble him; for no one would try to trap Reynard for the total bounty of four dollars.

The various local governments may place a bounty upon crows, sharp-shinned and Coopers hawks, blackbirds, English sparrows, gophers, house rats and rattlesnakes.

"In the history of the bounty laws in Wisconsin the state has paid bounties upon the scalps of almost every kind of animal, mistaking them for the scalps of wolves. In many instances the scalps of muskrats, rabbits, woodchucks, pocket gophers, grey fox and squirrel have been paid for as the scalps of wolf cubs. It has been a common practice to offer the scalp of a dog and attempt to receive a bounty." These statements were made by Louis R. Nagler, who is in the office of the state prohibition commission at present. He has made a study of the bounty question.

"There is too much chance for graft in the case of bounty laws. One man used to buy the green pelts of coyotes killed in the western states, soak the scalp to soften it, smear it with the blood of a rabbit, and present it for bounty. The fact that he was collecting so much money led to an investigation which exposed his methods."

The rattlesnake bounty furnished an interesting incident in one of the counties in southwestern Wisconsin. A man was found who had a lot of these snakes in captivity. All of them were minus their rattles which had been presented for bounty payment.

"Why are you keeping them alive," he was asked. "They won't grow new rattles, will they?"

"No," he replied, "but they will grow new snakes.

Under the present law which requires that the whole carcass be shown to the town chairman, that the whole pelt be sent to the county clerk, and that three holes be punched in the base of each ear, it is difficult to get bounty falsely.

Mr. Nagler, however, is in favor of doing away with the payment of bounties. He states:

"I think that the United States government is taking the best means to rid its lands of predatory animals. It is employing professional hunters and paying them by the month. If they do not produce results, they are discharged. That is the way in which Wisconsin should deal with this problem."

INJUNCTION AGAINST RAIL BOND ISSUE BY ETTRICK IS GRANTED

Judge O'Neill Issues Permanent Restraining Order in Case of Ettrick & Northern

Judge James O'Neill, in a decision just received in La Crosse, has granted the permanent injunction restraining the town of Ettrick from issuing $55,000 in bonds to aid in keeping the Ettrick & Northwestern railroad in operation. The hearing on the injunction was held at Whitehall.

Cowie & Hale and Twesme & Weber appeared for R. J. Herried, Ettrick taxpayer, who sought to enjoin the town from issuing the bonds. The lawyers for Herried contended that the town could issue bonds to aid in constructing the railroad, but that it was against the statutes to give the town's money to keep the road in operation. Gaveney & Barlow and Ole Eggum were counsel for the railroad and J. E. Higbee for the town.

SELECT DATES FOR CARNIVAL NEXT JANUARY

Second Big Annual Mid-Winter Event to be Held the Last Week of the Month

SPECIAL FEATURES PLANNED TO AUGMENT ENTERTAINMENT

King's and Queen's Ball to be One of the New Functions

LA CROSSE'S second mid-winter carnival will be held January 25, to 28 inclusive, starting on Wednesday and concluding Saturday night.

Dates for the carnival were designated at a meeting of members of the merchants' bureau of the Chamber of Commerce Monday morning. Harry O. Williams was elected general chairman of the committee. Mr. Williams was chairman of the parade committee in last winter's carnival and in this and subsequent public events has demonstrated his executive capacity.

Figuring that the last week of January will probably offer the best winter weather for the event, the committee is already making elaborate plans for a program of outdoor sports, attractions and special indoor functions which will surpass last winter's carnival. One of the new features will be a king's and queen's ball. The parade will again be an imposing spectacle. Special attractions will be made for the outdoor sports, expected to be the most popular feature of the carnival.

Following the plan adopted last year the various details of the program will be outlined and carried through by special committees.

A budget system will be adopted for the financing of the carnival and every effort will be made to conduct the affair in businesslike and systematic manner.

LATE RETURNS CUT DOWN NESTOS LEAD IN DAKOTA FIGHT

Independent Candidate Has Majority of 7,761 With Few Returns to Come in FARGO, N. D.—By The Associated Press.—With 121 scattered precincts unaccounted for at 1 p. m. Monday, R. A. Nestos, independent gubernatorial candidate, had a lead of 6,896 votes over Governor L. J. Frazier, nonpartisan, in tabulations made by a group of independent newspapers. Western counties reported minor changes in total precincts making the total for the state 2,098. The 1,977 precincts reported by independent newspapers gave Nestos 108,903, and Frazier 102,007. This total of 210,910 was believed within 8,000 of the total vote cast.

FARGO, N. D.—By The Associated Press.—R. S. Nestos, independent gubernatorial candidate held a lead of 7,761 over Gov. L. J. Frazier, nonpartisan, when 1,922 of the state's 2,086 precincts had reported unofficially Monday on the vote in Friday's recall election.

These precincts, as shown in tabulations made by a group of independent newspapers, the only state-wide collection force functioning, gave Nestos 108,086 votes and Frazier 100,325. The total tabulated was 208,411.

It was estimated 7,000 to 12,000 votes were unaccounted for.

Nestos made a net gain of 499 votes through an error in tabulation of returns in Ward county in which Minot, his home town, is located. The error was discovered by the county auditor and with 77 out of 81 precincts in that county reported, it turned from Frazier to the Nestos column by a majority of 276.

FOUR IRISH WOMEN ESCAPE FROM JAIL IN DUBLIN SUNDAY

DUBLIN.—Four Irish women, political prisoners in Mount Joy prison, escaped Sunday night. One, Linda Kears, a nurse, was serving a sentence of ten years.

The escape was effected by means of a rope ladder thrown across the prison wall and the fugitives clambered down a steep embankment and escaped, completing the most daring jail delivery in the history of Mount Joy.

HALT ORGANIZATION WORK OF UNIONS IN WEST VIRGINIA FIELD

Injunction Against United Mine Workers Granted by Indianapolis Judge

EFFORTS OF UNIONS HELD TO BE IN RESTRAINT OF TRADE

Does Not Deny Right of Workers to Organize

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—An injunction directed at stopping the United Mine Workers of America from efforts to unionize the Williamson coal fields in West Virginia, where miners have been on strike for more than a year, was issued Monday by Federal Judge A. B. Anderson on the ground that the union was seeking to restrain trade.

The court did not deny the right of workers to organize, but held the miners' efforts in West Virginia were in furtherance of a conspiracy with operators in organized union fields to shut off the competition of the non-union mined coal. In discussing with counsel the text of the order, Judge Anderson said he would not enjoin "peaceful efforts" of the union to organize West Virginia.

Further in the discussion the judge said: "I am holding the effort to unionize West Virginia is unlawful in itself because it is an effort to suppress competition."

The Judge also said he would enjoin the "check off" system of operators deducting union dues from miners' wages.

In a statement of reasons for issuing the order made before he began the discussion of the text of the order, Judge Anderson said:

"This court cannot police West Virginia, nor does it hold that the United Mine Workers' union is itself an unlawful organization, nor will it in any way attempt to curtail its lawful activities; but it can enjoin the unlawful activities here in Indiana who are here now under the jurisdiction of this court and a temporary injunction to that effect will be issued."

WITNESSES TELL OF EARLY LIFE OF VIRGINIA RAPPE

CHICAGO, Ill.—Witnesses who knew Virginia Rappe, film actress who died following a party given by Fatty Arbuckle in San Francisco and which resulted in his being held on charges of manslaughter, testified Monday before representatives of the state of California and the defense, relating to their knowledge of the girl during her earlier life in Chicago.

The witnesses were asked a prepared interrogation specified by the trial judge in San Francisco.

UNIONISTS IN ATTACK UPON IRISH POLICY

Motion of Censure is Argued in British House of Commons on Monday

ULSTER REGARDED AS THE MAIN BONE OF CONTENTION

Lloyd George Consults With Cabinet on Reply to Assailants

LONDON.—By The Associated Press.—Possible legislation to put the Ulster parliament in a better position was indicated by Premier Lloyd George Monday in the house of commons in answering critics in the debate on the unionist motion intended as a censure of the government's Irish policy.

The premier said the position of the Ulster parliament was intolerable, and unless something happened in the next few days to put the position right under the government of Ireland act a short bill would be introduced to remedy the position. As to the Irish negotiations the premier assured the house that no agreement was possible without the sanction of the imperial parliament.

LONDON.—Debate in the house of commons on the Irish question, particularly the unionist motion intended as a censure of the government, excited keen interest throughout Great Britain Monday. The unionist motion follows:

"That this house views with grave apprehension the action of the government in entering upon negotiations with delegates from southern Ireland who have taken the oath of allegiance to the Irish republic and have repudiated the authority of the crown.

"And in view of the fact that an act of parliament for the settlement of the relations between Great Britain and Ireland was passed as recently as last year, this house is of the opinion that no proposals for the government of Southern Ireland should be made without the sanction of parliament."

Premier Lloyd George returned to London from Chequers court Sunday night so he might have final consultations with his colleagues before replying to his assailants.

The question of allegiance to the king received little attention from political writers on the Anglo-Irish situation. They appear to regard Ulster as the chief source of preoccupation on both sides. The Daily Mail declared it was understood the government had decided to grant Ulster's petition that its government be made effective and had determined to turn over to that government various powers thus far withheld pending the creation of a separate government in Southern Ireland. The newspaper explained that the method by which this could be effected without special legislation was undetermined and it added that it had received no information as to the way the government would meet objections from the Dail Eireann.

Reports that the government had laid before the Irish delegates a number of questions were reiterated by Monday's newspapers. It was said the Sinn Fein representatives had transmitted the questions to Dublin for an answer, and it was assumed Dublin's rejoinder would have an important bearing on the situation.?

VESSEL OWNED BY HOUSE OF DAVID SWAMPS IN LAKE

Rosabelle Found Near Milwaukee Floating Bottom Side up; No Trace of Crew

MILWAUKEE, Wis.—The two-masted sailing vessel, Rosabelle, of the House of David, Benton Harbor, was found floating bottomside up in Lake Michigan, 42 miles east of Milwaukee, early Sunday, it was announced by officers of car ferry No. 4, Ann Arbor, who made the discovery Monday.

No trace of the crew of four was found.

The Rosabelle, built in 1863, was used to bring supplies to the House of David. It was a small vessel 100 by 25 feet beam. About two weeks ago it left High Island with a cargo of wood for the House of David. According to Capt. Olson, United States coast guards, the vessel probably sprang a leak, swamped and rolled over. There was no storm and no signs of collision.

Nine Men Aboard

BENTON HARBOR, Mich.—The schooner Rosabelle, wrecked in Lake Michigan, left High Island last Friday carrying a load of lumber. She is understood to have nine men aboard. At the House of David, owners of the vessel, it was said, no word had been received as to the fate of the crew.

ARTISTS ON NORMAL PROGRAM ENDORSED BY MUSICAL CRITICS

Vera Poppe and Edna Ver Haar Approved in World Music Centers

A fine test of a musician's capacity is found in the judgment of critics in those European cities where standards are so high that we call them "musical centers." It is the ambition of every rising artist to meet the criticism in these centers and to win approval that determines the certainty of ultimate success.

Misses Ver Haar and Poppe, soloists in the Normal Lecture course on Tuesday evening, have passed this test most successfully. The following excerpts from foreign papers are ample evidence of this fact.

First concerning the cellist, Miss Poppe:

London Times—"Her fine tone and fluent technique were quite remarkable, and revealed an exceptional mastery of the instrument."

Glasgow Herald—"The young artiste, Miss Vera Poppe, is an admirably equipped player, the tone she produces being unusually robust. In quieter parts she proved that she can also coax her instrument to tenderness if need be."

Miss Ver Haar is rapidly gaining a name for herself as "the great Swedish contralto."

Stockholm Daily News—"Edna Swanson Ver Haar sang a well-chosen group, showing a wonderfully soulful and highly cultured voice. Such a bell-like and ringing contralto voice is seldom heard."

Goteborg Handel—"First place must be accorded to Edna Swanson Ver Haar, who sang the Samson and Dalila aria. Her magnificent personal appearance won the public immediately, and when the first lovely tones of her genuine Swedish contralto poured from her throat the audience was entirely hers."

The Mirage Cities of Oregon

Out in the sage brush of Oregon there are ten or a dozen cities which exist principally on the map. They are stretched out in a line a few miles apart and they were started by land speculators ten years ago, who induced persons to buy lots with the idea that there was immediate prospect of a railroad being built. The tracks were never laid and the "cities" are being turned back into farm land by the neglect of the lot owners to pay taxes. Only about three per cent of the buyers have kept up with their taxes. These settlements are commonly referred to as the Mirage Cities.

Bug Round-up With Vacuum Cleaner

When the suburban resident appeared in his front yard with the longest nozzle, meant for the picture moldings, attached to his vacuum cleaner, the neighbors were surprised, but his explanation was sound: he to stand the weight of a ladder stated that he did not intend to against the trunk and he did not have vacuum clean the leaves, but there a spraying outfit. So he picked the had been bugs off the trees for days, lures off the the top branches with which were too slender and young the vacuum cleaner.

MISS ESTHER PROTZ AND FRANK KOHL MARRIED OCT. 19

Wedding of Genevieve Finnerty and Edgar J. Frye Celebrated October 22

TOMAH, Wis. — (Special.) — The marriage of Miss Esther Protz and Mr. Frank Kohl, both of Tomah, was celebrated at eight o'clock on the evening of October 19, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Protz. Rev. J. G. Glaeser of St. Mary's Lutheran church read the marriage lines in the presence of a large company of relatives and friends of the bridal pair. Following the ceremony, a wedding supper was served to the company. Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Louis Rosenmaier of St. Paul, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wallerman of Madison. Mr. and Mrs. Kohl will reside at Dubuque, Iowa, where the bridegroom is employed.

Genevieve, only daughter of Mrs. M. Finnerty, and Mr. Edgar J. Frye, both of Tomah, were married at St. Mary's Catholic church on Saturday morning, October 22. Rev. Louis Wurst performed the marriage ceremony in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends of the bridal pair. Following the ceremony, a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's mother. Covers were laid for thirty. Out of town relatives and guests included Mr. and Mrs. Harold Finnerty, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Finnerty, Chicago; Mrs. R. H. Schultz, La Crosse; Mrs. Otto Olson, Wauson. After a wedding journey, Mr. and Mrs. Frye will take up their residence in Tomah, where the groom is an employe of the C. M. & St. P. Railroad company. The bride has resided in Tomah the greater part of her life and has a wide circle of friends.

Mrs. Henry Frohmader is the guest of her sister, Mrs. John Heinel of Mauston.

Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Shuman of Wauson are guests at the parental home of Mrs. Shuman.

A school for citizenship is held each Monday evening at the high school. Principal W. E. Bush is coaching the class and preparing the members for an examination to take place in the near future.

Stanley Butts, only son of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Butts, has gone to Duluth, Minn., where he is a member of the Duluth Cooperage Co., a large manufacturing concern.

Miss Inez Corrigan of Chicago is the guest of her mother and sister, Mrs. Katherine Corrigan, and Mrs. W. B. McCaul.

Miss Merle Dake of Viroqua and Miss Nelson of Viroqua were guests over Saturday and Sunday of Miss Louise Gassner.

Mrs. Alva McMullen has returned to this city from a visit to friends residing at Milwaukee and Hartland.

Miss Cecelia Liddane, graduate in public school music supervision at Marquette college, is at the head of the music department in the Mauston city schools.

Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Bolton have returned to this city from an extended trip throughout the west and a visit to relatives residing in Washington, Oregon and California.

Miss Cornelia Lueck has resigned her position in the Tomah Journal office.

Rev. Louis Wurst was the guest on Friday of Rev. Doane of Necedah.

Not for Women Only

To millions it is bringing whiter teeth

This new way of teeth-cleaning appeals to women. It brings them prettier teeth. But men also enjoy it, and children must use it to properly clean their teeth.

Millions now use it, largely by dental advice. The glistening teeth you see everywhere now show the results of its use.

Everyone needs it, as this simple test will show. See the results it brings in ten days and decide that for yourself.

You must fight film

Your teeth are coated with a viscous film. You can feel it with your tongue. It clings to teeth, gets between the teeth and stays.

The ordinary tooth paste does not effectively combat it. Your tooth brush has left much of it intact. And that clinging film may do a ceaseless damage.

Film absorbs stains, making the teeth look dingy. Film is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. Also of other serious troubles, local and internal.

Thus film causes most tooth troubles. And, despite the tooth brush, all these troubles have been constantly increasing. Some have become so common as to be alarming.

Now ways to combat it

Dental science has for years sought ways to combat that film. The ways have now been found. Able authorities have amply proved their efficiency. Leading dentists everywhere now advise their daily use.

The methods are embodied in a scientific tooth paste. The name is Pepsodent. Its use is fast spreading the world over.

To let all know it quickly, a 10-Day Tube is being presented to anyone who asks. Thus thousands of new people daily are learning its delights.

Combines five effects

But Pepsodent does more than fight film. It fights the acid which is a great tooth destroyer.

Each use of Pepsodent multiplies the salivary flow. That is Nature's great tooth-protecting agent. It multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva. That is to digest the starch deposits which may otherwise remain and form acid.

It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. That is Nature's neutralizer of the acids which attack the teeth.

It combats the film wherever it adheres. It leaves the teeth so highly polished that film cannot easily cling. Pepsin is also included.

See and feel it act

The results are not uncertain. You can see and feel them. Some are almost instant. A ten-day test is most convincing.

Present the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear. Watch the other good effects.

To millions this test has proved a revelation. It has shown them the way to prettier teeth, to cleaner, safer teeth. One does not return to the old ways when he sees what this new way does.

The delightful results

One conspicuous effect is to beautify the teeth. Another is a feeling of cleanliness. Men who smoke will see great changes. It is film that absorbs tobacco stains.

But it is most essential to the children. Young teeth are most subject to film and starch attacks. Dentists advise that children use Pepsodent daily from the time the first tooth appears. Under old methods, very few children escape some tooth destruction.

To all this test is important. Cut out the coupon so you won't forget to make it. Present it this week.

Your Son

EVERY father, as soon as the doctor announces that "it's a boy," begins nursing a hope that son will follow in father's footsteps. It is a great comfort, in old age, for John Blank to see "John Blank & Sons" nailed over the door of his shop. It means that the institution which father toiled so hard to build up will live on after his death. A machinist may earnestly want his son to "get an education and have a better chance," but deep down in his heart he knows that he would be extremely happy if son became the finest tool maker in the world.

No doubt Thomas Lincoln, poor farmer, hoped his son would become a rich farmer. Instead, Abraham Lincoln became president. Lawyer John Adams probably urged his son, who became a president, to study law. Son, all through his boyhood, is eagerly watched by father to see if he displays any of the particular brand of ability that pa turned into a means of livelihood.

For 101 years the Rev. Andrew Broaddus has occupied the pulpit of the Salem Baptist church at Sparta, Va. The first Andrew Broaddus, preaching in this church from 1820 until his death in 1848, was succeeded by his son, another Andrew Broaddus. In turn, his son inherited the pulpit. Now there is a fourth Andrew Broaddus, son of the present pastor. So far, he has not showed much inclination to take up the work when his father retires from the ministry. But you would have to travel a good many days to find a similar instance of heredity.

Many businesses, built up by father and sons years ago, are still operating under the old firm name. But control of the business has passed into the hands of outsiders, frequently the family not being represented at all.

It may be disappointing to a father for his son to turn to a totally different line of work. But, after all, it is a wise provision of the scheme of things. If sons always followed father in the same business or line of work, the world would run in a rut. Many lines of activity would become overcrowded, one father's place being taken by three sons, later by nine grandsons, still later by twenty-seven great-grandsons. None would be available to fill new positions that are opened yearly by new fields of activity.

The wonder of what your son will become is one of the most thrilling mysteries of your lifetime.

Tz'uk Kuk

HOW many football stars know that they are playing a game invented in China 4618 years ago? The inventor was Huang Ti, the Yellow Emperor, husband of the woman who originated the silk worm industry. Football is the oldest outdoor sport. Compared with it, baseball is a youngster. The first diagram of a baseball diamond was drawn in 1839 by Abner Doubleday of Cooperstown, N. Y. In 1907 an investigating commission found that the "national game of baseball" originated with the Knickerbocker Club, which was organized in New York in 1845. You can, of course, trace baseball back to "town ball" of early New England. That, in turn, leads you to the English game of "rounds." But, alongside football, baseball is a babe in arms, though fans may insist that it originated before man, among monkeys tossing cocoanuts at each other.

Dr. Stewart Culin, of the Brooklyn Institute Museum, is the man who has traced football back into China 4618 years ago. He says the Chinese played it with a round leather ball, stuffed with goat hair. Players wore silk clothes and, when tired, fanned themselves. "Tz'uk Kuk" was what the Chinese called football. The Greeks had a similar game, which somehow reached them from the Orient. So did the Romans. Ancient Eskimos played it with a moss-stuffed leather ball. Cromwell was a football fan 300 years ago. Chaucer and Shakespeare saw the game and wrote delightedly about it. Time and again, English kings put the ban on the gridiron game, fearing it was undermining the game of archery, which developed bow-and-arrow experts for war.

The reason football originated in remote antiquity and was played by every important nation, is because it embodies nearly every branch of war tactics. The big German drives during the World War were nothing but attempts to plunge through a line that held. If an army exposes a flank, the enemy makes an end run. As for artillery, it corresponds to forward passes. When West Point plays football with Annapolis, it is a contest of military tactics between Army and Navy.

For Sprains and Spavins

ONE notes with satisfaction that in his order permitting the prescription of wine and beer for medicinal purposes Secretary Mellon has left no stone unturned to make sure that there shall be no limitation of the medical benefits to the patient. The order unequivocably provides that the beverages may be prescribed for either "internal or external" use. A more thoughtless authority might have neglected permission to prescribe beer for external application and thus the lives of countless patients or impatients, might have been jeopardized. The Anti-Saloon League may protest that by thus broadening the field for the medicinal use of beer the output of the breweries will be greatly enlarged, and Secretary Hoover may complain that thereby much grain that could be employed to save the millions of starving Russians will be lost to the hopper. But it is always better to be safe, even at the risk of being naive.

Here's to lager beer, rub it in, rub it in!
Here's to lager beer, rub it in, rub it in!
Here's to lager beer
That makes you feel so queer—

Power

WATER power, the sleeping giant, is coming to life. Since March 1, the Federal Power commission has issued permits for projects that will develop 1,269,000 horsepower. Applications for thirteen times that much are filed, not yet acted upon.

Every drop of falling water, on its way back to the sea, is potential power, a labor-saver for man. Failure to harness it is as foolish as it would be to burn all electric lights night and day. But a beginning has been made. Prospects are good.

Magic

A GREAT mystery of magic is how a Hindu juggler once spoke to a meeting in Bengal, walked out the door and showed up 100 miles away an hour later. Shucks! Any modern aviator can do that. A theatrical company is playing "The Wrong Number", night performances, at the Duke of York Theater, London. Manager signs up to put on daily matinees, with the same company, at Manchester, 190 miles away. Company will travel by air. Modern science beats ancient Black Magic.

Yankee

FREDERMAN GADE, Norway's new minister to Brazil, stops off in New York and tells this story: At one time, a woman complimented him on his ability to speak many languages, and asked him where he learned English. "I was taught it since childhood," said Gade. "But I never felt I knew it fluently until I was elected mayor of Lake Forest, Ill." Wherever you find something doing, you'll find an American.

In Ye Olden Times

TEN YEARS AGO TODAY

In celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood, the Alumni association of St. James school last night presented Father Ambrose Murphy with a purse of silver at a unique surprise party at the priest's residence. Thomas Skemp made the presentation speech. Father Murphy said his first mass November 1, 1885.

A. C. Gran, general secretary of the local Y. M. C. A., will go to Wausau Monday to present an address on the La Crosse plan of membership and to speak to several committees on plans of work. The local association is looked to by many associations as an ideal for association methods, membership plans and work.

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Karl Bach of La Crosse has received word from his brother, Frank C. Bach, conveying the announcement of his appointment to the chair of mandolin teaching in the state university at Madison.

Horses, sleighs and men by the dozens are leaving the city for the northern woods and will remain there during the entire winter. In their effort to get men to go to the woods this year, the lumber companies offered wages from ten to twenty percent higher than they have ever paid before and full crews are assured.

Frank Wart of North La Crosse is moving his family and household goods to Chicago where he has secured a position with the Deering Harvester company.

President Clark of the Manufacturers and Jobbers' Union has appointed J. S. Medary, J. J. Hogan and A. Hirshheimer as a committee to visit President A. B. Stickney of the Chicago and Great Western road with the purpose of inducing him to build a line to La Crosse.

THIRTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Messrs. Stavrum and Hulberg will soon be located in a handsome double store on the corner of Main and Third streets. The floor of the storeroom recently vacated by Foster and Burnham has been lowered, a large window has been cut in the east wall, and the pillars between the two stores are already in place.

An Indian known as "Old man married too much", passed through North La Crosse today accompanied by seven squaws, all dressed in the picturesqueness of their tribe.

The Hirshheimer keg factory now in the course of construction on Indian Hill will be known as the National Cooperage company.

Professor J. W. Congdon has taken possession of his new house at the corner of Ninth and King streets.

Hallowe'en At Helen's

"Come to a Hallowe'en party at Helen's. That was all there was on the invitation cards and they had been received by all of the members of the young dancing set and many of the younger married persons of the town.

"Helen—Helen who?" asked every one else. This was indeed carrying out to a letter the mysterious atmosphere that had been woven about the night called Hallowe'en.

There was only one man in the town who seemed to feel that he knew who Helen was. There had been a Helen in his life five years before, but she had gone to live in Sorrento, Italy in a villa overlooking the bay of Naples. They had quarreled over their differences of temperament, and she had sailed away to live her own life in what she believed was her own romantic way. She wrote stories for a living, such as it was. He had seen her name from time to time but he had never had a line from her pen since she left.

The little invitation cards created no end of fun in the town and every one was trying to find out, where the party was to be held.

"Do you know of a 'Helen,' George?" asked Grace Pennington.

George Morton shook his head. "No-o, I don't," he said, hesitatingly "At least, not here," he added.

The girl laugher, "Oh-h — then there is a Helen—somewhere!"

The man was non-committal.

In the course of a few days, further cards arrived, "Follow the Hectic highway."

The plot thickened, but the day before Hallowe'en a number of arrows appeared on posts and trees. "To the Hectic highway," they read. But they ended at four crossroads and not until Hallowe'en did the other arrows appear.

Those invited had decided to meet at a given point and, together, follow the arrows. They had, by mutual agreement, decided to wear a sheet and pillowcase costume so as to carry out for their unknown hostess, in detail, the atmosphere of the occasion.

They reached the crossroads. "George, you are good at roads—you lead," said Grace Pennington, who was one of seven in George Morton's big touring car.

The man got out and looked at the sign at the crossroads. A black cat's face with a lantern behind it had been hung on the point of the arrow and the direction given was down through a dirt road leading off one of the main highways.

"It is a Hectic highway indeed," remarked George as he led the procession of cars into the dirt road, narrow and dark save for the occasional skull-and-cross-bones lantern that had been hung on the arrows. At the end of the road there was a sharp turn up a sandy hill, and in lowered speed the ghostly clad guests proceeded.

At last they came to an old farmhouse which had been so nearly reincarnated that no one of the crowd recognized it as being the shack they used to pass on occasional picnic parties.

In lighted letters, set in black glass, was the word H-E-L-E-N-'S.

There were murmured "Oh's" and "Ah's" from behind pilloweases. "But who is Helen?" asked every one with bated breath. This was indeed a lark.

Signs told them where to go, white arms reached out to shake their hands, groans came from the shrubbery as they passed into the dimly lighted house. Weird music was wafted from no one knew where and small tables lighted only with pumpkin lanterns stood around the dancing room.

Down the old cellar stairs each guest was guided, George Marton standing at the head to see that all the members of the party were accounted for. And still no sign of the hostess; no human voice to welcome the guests. George was beginning to feel queer.

When they were all assembled in the dark cellar a voice spoke. It made no particular impression upon any one except George Morton. It was, unmistakably, the voice of his Helen.

"It is five years since I left this old ground to go to live on the other side of the water. I have returned. I shall live here at this place, which shall be called 'Helen's,' and, together with the writing of my stories, I shall have a little tea house which I hope you will all frequent, for tea, for dancing, for a quiet hour in which to concentrate. I am glad to be back with you and I have taken this way of letting you know I have come to stay. Are you glad to see me?" The light was thrown full upon the face of Helen Tracy—lovelier than ever.

It was long moments before the girls had stopped kissing her and during all the time that the noisy welcoming had been going on George had stood back, alternately pinching himself to see if he were dreaming and heaping epithets upon the crowd for being so slow to return to the dancing floor above.

At last he was able to reach the girl's side. "Helen," he said, taking her hand. "Have you forgotten—me?"

"No; in spite of myself I have been remembering you all these years," she said frankly.

George did not let go her hand. "Is that true? Oh, if you only knew how I have longed for a sight of you, Helen. Nothing has seemed real since you left. Even now I cannot believe you are here."

She stepped close to him. "But I am, George."

He reached out for her; the light had gone out; they stood in the dim reflection of the light from upstairs. "Must I wait to tell you I love you, dear? I love you better than I ever believed it possible for me to love."

There was silence for a moment, during which some one from above began to call for the hostess.

"Tell me quickly, sweetheart, that you do love me."

"I do, I do," she whispered.

"Then we'll make the Hectic highway a heavenly highway, won't we, Helen?" he asked as they went up to join the dancers.

WAR—OR NO WAR?

In Washington, D. C., on November 11th, there will be held the Disarmament Conference, to which delegates from various countries will be sent. Below is a pen-sketch of a man whose influence will be felt at this meeting.

Dr. W. K. Wellington Koo

An ambitious young Chinese came over to America in 1905 to be educated. He was but one of many other foreign students in American colleges. But he was different. That is why, in 1915, after having returned to China, he came again to America, this time as minister from his country to the United States.

Dr. W. K. Wellington Koo is the long name of the young diplomat. He was one of the Boxer Rebellion students. After that terrible massacre, in which so many Christian missionaries and merchants were killed, China paid a certain amount to each of the countries whose citizens had suffered.

The United States, realizing that China had suffered from the invasion of foreigners and that the Rebellion had been brought on to a large extent by their own greed, refused to accept her share of the money. The Chinese government then turned the sum over to a fund to be used in sending promising young Chinese to this country to be educated. So this is how young W. K. Wellington Koo started on his career.

Dr. Koo was graduated from Columbia in 1909. Later he took his master's and doctor's degrees. Then he returned to his own country to enter public service. His broad training and intelligence soon made him a well-known figure. He is well fitted to deal with the question of disarmament.

When Dr. Koo was appointed minister he was the youngest minister who had ever been sent to the United States from any country.

Or Worse

"If I cut a beefsteak into four pieces and then cut these quarters in half, what will I have?" asked the teacher.

"Eighths," replied Jim.

"And if I cut the eighths?"

"Sixteenths."

"And again?"

"Thirty-secondths."

"And again?"

"Hamburger."

The Witch's Dress

The girl who is tired of going to masquerade parties as a ghost or a witch, might try a jack-o'-lantern costume. Make a skirt of green crepe paper, cut in scallops. Then make a waist of yellow crepe paper, and a little, round yellow cap with black paper pasted on to look like the face of a jack-o'-lantern.

PUZZLES AND RIDDLES

1. Three brothers have thirty apples. John, because he is the oldest, will get the most. Bill will get one half as many as John, and Ed will get three fourths as many as Bill. How many apples will each get?

2. What is higher without a head on it than with a head?

Answers: 1. John, 16; Bill, 8; Ed, 6. 2. A pillow.

TEAM PLAY

Written especially for this newspaper by Ralph A. Kinney
All-American Football Team, 1902, '03, '04

Each man on a football team is like a cog in a wheel. If one cog is thrown out of position the other cogs are likewise affected. Every player should know exactly what the other men are doing during each play. If he does not he is not doing all he can to make his team—really, a big machine—run smoothly.

During evenings the team should meet and discuss, with the aid of blackboard diagrams, each play. The diagram should show the position of every man during every minute of a play. It is the duty of the players to become well acquainted with these positions.

Signals should be rehearsed and learned thoroughly.

Team play, when there is good individual play, may be developed indoors, off the field.

ONE REEL YARNS

JACK-O-LANTERN TO THE RESCUE

"Did you ever do anything exciting on Hallowe'en, grandmother?" asked Mildred between bites from her popcorn ball.

"My most exciting Hallowe'en," smiled grandmother, "came one year when your father was just about your age. Your grandfather was then agent on the Indian reservation and we lived in a little cottage near the edge of the town. The Indians loved and trusted your grandfather and we never had the slightest trouble with them.

"Hallowe'en came and my husband was called away to see about some land grants. We were very disappointed, especially Fred, your father. We had raised some pumpkins and Fred had saved the largest one for a Jack-o'-lantern. He had been working on it in secret and meant to surprise us with it.

"Evening came. I was making some taffy apples for the children when the door was suddenly thrown open and two Indians stepped in. I was used to having them call, so I was not frightened, only a little bit annoyed.

"Very roughly they demanded food. I saw that they had been drinking 'fire water.' I was frightened. Fred was somewhere back of the house, and I was alone with the baby, your uncle. The reservation safe was in that room.

"I quickly set out some food. They gulped it down, then began looking about the room. I saw they had guns.

"When their backs were turned, I grabbed the baby up and ran for the door. One of them stepped in front of me. I was too frightened to scream. Then one of the Indians gave a strange cry and stared at the bedroom door. I turned and looked. There stood a grinning jack-o'-lantern—Fred's—all lit up on top of a broom stick which was draped with a sheet. It moved slowly toward us.

"The Indians gave one yell," laughed grandmother, "and both tried to get out of the door at once. I guess they're running yet."

The Remora

BY DR. WILLIAM E. BARTON

THE United States of America makes many and varied efforts to educate the people of this fair land. For instance, there is the marine laboratory at Wood's Hole, Massachusetts. That is where they have fertilized by artificial means the eggs of certain forms of life and thus obtained interesting results.

Among the most interesting acquaintances I made there some years ago was the remora. I had heard about him, but had not seen him. There he was in the same tank with a shark.

The remora is a very small fish compared with a shark, being most two feet long and very thin. Upon the top of his head is a slatted, oval spot, with remarkable powers of suction. The remora swims up under or beside or even over the shark, attaches himself by this device and lets the shark perform all the labor necessary to their travel.

They tell different stories about the remora and the shark. I have heard that a shark will sometimes try to rid himself of this free-rider, and, becomes so worried as almost to have nervous prostration, but that he rarely if ever succeeds in killing his companion.

I have heard the remora by his suction derives nourishment from the shark and weakens him, but this has been disproved. I have heard that a shark after a time gets to like his companion, thus making a virtue of a necessity. I have been told that the remora guides the shark, and he is sometimes called the "pilot-fish," but this story I believe is discredited and the name declared to be without foundation in fact.

The shark has this strange messmate, who is capable of doing his own swimming, but prefers to have it done for him, and is able to provide his own food, but instead is willing to take pot luck with the larger fish.

There are people who live on the remora principle. They are not precisely pirates or parasites, but they have become measurably dependent upon the opinions and decisions of other people. It is not a very courageous or wholly safe way to order one's life.

I heard that the remora becomes so dependent upon some other conveyance than his own that he sometimes attaches himself to an ocean liner. This is satisfactory as to transportation, but not as to the food supply. Also he sometimes attaches himself to a sea-turtle, and never gets anywhere.

It is probably too late for the remora to learn any better, but some of the rest of us may not be so hopeless.

FRECKLES — BE CAREFUL WHAT YOU SAY — BY BLOSSER

WISCONSIN AT WASHINGTON

By Betty Pruett Farrington

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Failure of the forthcoming conference on limitation of armaments and far eastern affairs to arrive at some agreement to lighten the tax burden or war preparation will bring a world crisis, James A. Frear of Hudson has predicted. The tremendous importance of the problems to be put in the balance, he said, was of crucial importance in the history of the world.

"If it fails it will be one of the saddest commentaries on human affairs," he said, "It cannot fail without bringing a tremendously serious situation involving the very peace of the world."

To the women of the country Mr. Frear said, leaders must largely look for the support which make the conference a success. In the event of a failure in this conference, they are in his opinion the hope of the future.

"Those familiar with the calling of the conference realize that the success of Senator Borah and others to secure legislative support," Mr. Frear said, "was largely brought about by the support of women."

With the belief that people everywhere should be aroused to the possibilities of the coming conference, Mr. Frear is addressing a mass meeting in Newark, N. J., on Saturday night on disarmament. He is among many others in official and allied work in Washington who are interested in keeping alive popular interest in the event.

Adolphus P. Nelson of Grantsburg, supported the senate bill, rejected by the house banking and currency committee, to extend to state banks which are members of the federal reserve system, the same discount privileges as are extended to national banks.

"I am heartily in favor of giving to the state banks who are members of the federal reserve system, the same privileges extended to national bank members of the system," Mr. Nelson said.

A visitor calling on Mr. Nelson this week was Hugh Baker of St. Croix Falls, who has a wide acquaintance in the state. Mr. Baker, although at present located in New York, is one of several brothers, one of whom is Ray Standard Baker, the author and journalist.

Herman Ekern, former state insurance commissioner of Wisconsin, has again come to Washington on matters relating to the insurance business in which he is now engaged. Upon his visits here, he usually calls on several members of the delegation in the house.

According to Joseph D. Beck of Virginia, army officers are engaged in a "desperate fight to make the coming conference on disarmament a failure." In a letter he sent into his district, Mr. Beck stated:

"It is said that army officers here in Washington were never so attentive to congressmen as they now are. The reason given for it is that the army is solidly opposed to disarmament. Disarmament means the dropping of hundreds of generals, colonels, captains, brigadiers, admirals, ensigns, lieutenants and others from the pay-rolls. Can it be possible that any man would rather have war than to give up his job in the army."

There are 855,346 homes in Wisconsin, according to the bureau of census. Of this number 212,464 are rented homes. 371,822 are owned free, 195,011 are owned free, 169,316 are mortgaged and the balance under conditions unknown.

The "fowl census" for Wisconsin presents some interesting figures. There are 11,495,057 chickens in the state. In 1910, according to the bureau of the census there were only 9,142,719. In the last ten years, the number of turkeys has decreased from 61,180 to 76,707, the number of geese from 93,782 to 99,105, the number of guinea fowl has decreased from 10,505 to 8,850, and the number of pigeon has decreased from 50,777 to 38,174.

The foreign loan refunding bill providing for the creation of a commission of five including the secretary of the treasury to negotiate terms and conditions under which our $11,000,000,000 foreign debt shall be paid was supported by five members of the Wisconsin delegation. On the measure which passed the house by a vote of 199 to 115, the delegation voted as follows:

For the bill: A. P. Nelson, Frear, Kleczka, Stafford and Browne.

Against the bill: Cooper, Lampert, Voigt, Beck, J. M. Nelson.

Not voting: Classon.

William H. Stafford of Milwaukee, fought vigorously to amend a bill providing for an appropriation of $1,000,000 for the construction of an American building at the Brazilian exposition in Rio de Janeiro. He proposed that the amount be cut in half. His amendment was lost, however, by a vote of 181. The delegation was recorded as follows:

For the amendment: J. M. Nelson, Stafford, Lampert.

Not voting: Browne, Classon, Kleczka and Frear.

"I am in favor of accepting the invitation of Brazil," Mr. Stafford said. "I want some sort of representation there by representatives becoming of this great country. But I am opposed in these days to voting $100,000 for a monument, or $1,000,000 in Brazilian money for the construction of a building to be turned over after a seven weeks' exposition to private institutions for the emolument of persons on whose land it is to be erected."

In votes on the revenue revision bill in the senate, Senator La Follette supported three democratic efforts to reduce the normal income tax on lower incomes while Senator Lenroot voted against them.

Freak Editions of the Bible

There are no less than ten freak editions of the Bible, some of which are very valuable. The freak generally consists of some misprint or typographical error. For instance, the Murderers' Bible has the word murmurer turned into murderer. Another contains "Blessed are the placemakers" for peacemakers.

The Salvation of Alaska

The Alaskan reindeer herds, the descendants of the twelve hundred reindeer imported from Siberia a quarter of a century ago, are not only thriving upon a formerly uncultivated domestic product, but supplying meat, milk, butter and cheese to the natives of Alaska and also the white population of "Seward's Ice Box," as Alaska was designated at the time of its purchase from Russia.

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

Ruddy Cheeks—Sparkling Eyes—Most Women Can Have

Says Dr. Edwards, a Well-Known Ohio Physician

Dr. F. M. Edwards for 17 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave to his patients a prescription made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming them Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. You will know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, which cause a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, you take one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the successful substitute for calomel—now and then just to keep them fit. 15c and 30c.

SECRETARY HOUSTON FIRED FROM OFFICE IN EQUITY SOCIETY

MADISON, Wis.—J. R. Houston, secretary of the Wisconsin Union of the American Society of Equity, was ousted by the board of directors at their meeting here Saturday afternoon. Economy was given as the reason for the removal, which is to take effect immediately.

Four leaders of Equity society in Wisconsin have changed during the last few months, two members of the board of directors, Frank Tilly, Omro, J. H. Hogan, Waunakee, Harry Holmes, business manager, and now Secretary Houston.

M. W. Tubbs, editor of the Equity News, official society paper will act as secretary-treasurer in addition to his other duties. Houston has been offered the post as chief organizer of the society, and has asked that he be given time to consider.

Yard Goods Must Go!

Judging from last week's crowds, this remarkable Closing Out Sale of Yard Goods will not last as long as we expected. The only way to get a fair view of the scope of the sale is to come down on a shopping trip and visit every section. It will be a revelation to you.

We know that it is good business to forget what we paid for the goods, and to consider only what price will surely and promptly sell them.

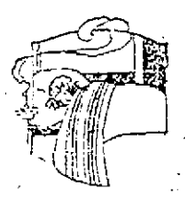

Please accept our invitation and come and see for yourself.

UNIQUE AFFAIR IS GIVEN ON SATURDAY BY MRS. BRADFIELD

MRS. J. A. L. Bradfield was hostess at her home, 1515 Main street, Saturday night at a delightfully informal and most unique affair, which was thoroughly enjoyed by the guests. Eight ladies were the guests, who were formed in couples, each couple preparing a course, in turn serving it and presiding as "host and hostess." A great deal of merriment resulted.

* * * *

MISS Helen Pavek was pleasantly surprised at her home, 1231 Winnebago street, in honor of her birthday. Dancing and games enlivened the evening and a delicious luncheon was served at eleven o'clock. A bouquet of chrysanthemums centered the table. The hostess was the recipient of some handsome gifts. Those present were the Misses Ledna Keller, Violet Albrecht, Violet Brophy, Pearl Neumann, Elizabeth Richmond, Anna Gallagher, Irene Carraher and Dorothy and Roselina Kubal.

Merry Party

THE young people of the Epworth League of the First Methodist church held a delightful Hallowe'en party in the church parlors Friday evening, October 28. A fine program was given, after which light refreshments were served. The parlors were artistically decorated to represent the Hallowe'en spirit.

Hallowe'en Party

THIRTY FRIENDS of Sarah Sill enjoyed a jolly Hallowe'en party at her home, 2326 Cass street, Friday evening. The hours passed merrily in playing games and Hallowe'en stunts. Mrs. Sill was assisted by Mrs. Frank A. Kenney in serving refreshments. The rooms were beautifully decorated in keeping with the Hallowe'en season, the guests were in costume and much merriment was caused by the clever outfits worn. The gypsy dance put on by Lorraine Kenney and Catherine Ferris deserves special mention. The affair proved to be one of the most enjoyable which this group of children has enjoyed for some time. The guests were William Cassels, Robert and Lorraine Kenney, Carl Schaefer, Lee, Earl and Geraldine Broadbeck, Catherine Ferris, Dorris Werner, Walter, Helen and Gertrude Sinsmaith, Francis Heftl, Helen Darling, Dorothy and Bernidine Palen, Martha Bagnioski, Matilda Jungen, Allen Vincent, Beverly Sneith, Russel Heiland, Irene Simkey, Harvey Schultz, Joy Severance and Gordon Sill.

Capt. Wilcox Returns

CAPTAIN AND MRS. H. J. Wilcox have returned from a trip to Alton, Ill., where the captain was associated with the Mississippi Sand and Gravel Co., after finishing a successful season as pilot on the steamer Washington, one of the Streckfus excursion steamers. Mr. and Mrs. Wilcox enjoyed a trip on Dr. Phillips's steam yacht, Idlehour, of Fort Madison, Ia., from Alton to St. Louis, then on the steamer, Alabama, to Quincy, Ill., and by rail to Davenport, where they were guests of J. C. Nelson for a week. They arrived at La Crosse Friday. The captain and his wife are contemplating going to Florida for the winter. Captain Wilcox left Saturday for Dubuque to take a tow of barges to Keokuk, Ia., and expects to be gone a week.

ON FRIDAY evening twenty young people enjoyed a very merry Hallowe'en party at Woodmen hall. The outer rooms were prepared for the initiation of candidates. As the guests entered they were met by a witch who conducted them to a room of "terror," through the witches' chamber and out to the hall, where dancing and games were the leading amusements of the evening. Miss Ann Heiser gave vocal selections, accompanied on the piano by Miss Anastasia Mahay. Special dancing numbers were given by Miss Verona Reubler and Mercedes Smith. The hall was prettily decorated with corn stalks, pumpkins and the usual Hallowe'en colors, orange and black. A midnight lunch was served at the lower end of the hall. Those present were the Misses Margaret Sprstad, Marcella Mahoney, Janet Atkinson, Leone Roberge, Verona Reubler, Ann Heiberg, Mercedes Smith, Katherine Vander Lee, Mereding Devine, Anastasia and Dorothy Mahay, Messrs. Donald and Joseph Mahoney, Donald Lathshaw, Thomas, Morelli and Sylvester Devine, Allie and Virgil Larkin, Edward Mahoney, Michael Nordengren and James Daly. The party was chaperoned by Mrs. Vander Lee, Mrs. J. M. Reubler, Mrs. Martin Larson, Mrs. George P. Smith and Miss Mahoney.

ENGINEER RIDES TWO AND A HALF MILLION MILES THEN RETIRES

Baldy Haynes, for 47 Years an Engineer, Pensioned at Age of 70

COLUMBUS, O.—John J. Freeman (Haynes, after riding approximately 2,500,000 miles in the past 47 years—or the equivalent of 100 times around the world—is retired with regrets.

After being an engineer for 47 consecutive years, the past 21 on the Norfolk & Western train running between Columbus and Portsmouth, he has been pensioned.

Still vigorous, "Baldy" might have gone on and on, transporting his human freight along the Scioto Valley, if he hadn't had a birthday this October. He reached three score and ten that day, and under the company's pension rule engineers must be retired at that age.

Now "Baldy" is hard put to pass the time.

"I can't imagine I'm through for good," he says, as he potters around the house, vainly seeking a thrill in small tasks. "I just seem to be taking a vacation.

Some Thrillers

"Baldy" has been in several collisions, while 11 times the wheels of his iron servant have snuffed out a human life.

But never was it "Baldy's" fault.

"No engineer can have much respect for the intelligence of folks," says Baldy. "When he sees how often they try to beat the train to the crossing, what chances they take needlessly, he gives up hoping and prays for the best."

In some respects modern railroading is play compared with what it used to be, according to "Baldy," who, by the way, has a fine crop of steel gray hair, the nickname having been born when he was 15 and an attack of scarlet fever had left him prematurely bald.

"For example, today both the railroad and the engineer are penalized if he works more than 16 consecutive hours, without rest," says Baldy. "About 20 years ago I switched cars for one solid week, without taking off my clothes."

MONARCHISTS STILL CLAIM OLD TIMES IN GERMANY WERE BEST

Third Year of Republic Finds no Change in Sentiments of Irreconcilables

BERLIN.—The third year of the German Republic has wrought no change of heart among the irreconcilable monarchists, whose argument that "the old times were better" is apt to appeal to a large section of the community who are suffering from the attenuated purchasing power of the mark.

Some agitation appears in the ultra-republican press in favor of banishing all Hohenzollerns from German soil forever, as France did after 1870, with her royal house, in order to consolidate the republic.

Emblems of the old imperial and royal regime are still surprisingly plentiful, which moves the Vorwaerts to bitter complaint against the authorities who tolerate them. The social democratic party organ declares that the higher ranks of officialdom are still honeycombed with reaction.

"In many government departments of our republic," the paper says, "pictures or busts of the Hohenzollerns, especially of the former kaiser, are still in evidence, decorated with the old Prussian colors and wound with crepe, and the stationery of some of these public offices, printed this year, still bears the imprint 'Imperial' or 'Royal.'

"All these officials," the Vorwaerts goes on, "took the oath of allegiance to the republic, but those of them who would survive the acid test would be alarmingly few."

The paper also points out that at the celebration of the anniversary of the constitution, no republican flags were flown from the majority of public buildings. In other papers, correspondents complain that none but the old regime colors were procurable anywhere.

"Many people imagine that the monarchy is coming back just because they see some prince or other 'on horseback,'" Chancellor Wirth remarked in a speech yesterday. He referred to the appearance of Eitel Friedrich, in full uniform at a patriotic function the other day.

Recent activities of other members of the formerly imperial family are passed under review by the Welt Am Montag, which laments:

"If the Hohenzollerns would only keep quiet, the impression abroad that the republic only constitutes a passing phase would be removed. But to keep quiet is an attainment they do not possess." The former Emperor William, the paper says, is still conferring, from his retreat at Doorn, the order of the House of Hohenzollern on some of his adherents in Germany.

THE DARBY AND JOAN

A Youngstown man was an enthusiastic spectator at the Kentucky Derby. Having little knowledge of the sport and desirous of placing a small bet just for the excitement of the thing, he looked over the list of contenders until his eyes rested on "Behave Yourself."

The Youngstown man, as the news reports have since told the world, was among those who "cleaned up," because Behave Yourself was the Derby winner.

"How in the world did you happen to pick the winner?" asked a friend.

"I had a hunch."

"Hunch?"

"Yes, 'behave yourself' is the last thing my wife said to me when I left home."—Youngstown Telegram.

Texas Calm

The inquisitive subscriber of Wharton inquires if we're awake to the Japanese peril. We are. We are moving heaven, and earth to save Texas, but are about to despair. They have slipped up on us and crowded into the state until there are now enough of them to average one to every 500 square miles, and they have grabbed all of our land except 375,000,000 acres.—Houston Post.

Use Right Screw-Driver

Probably the screw-driver and the hammer are the most used tools about the house, but it will surprise many people to know that there are three different kinds of drivers, to fit three different sizes of screws. If the correct driver is being used it will just fit the slot of the screw and no pressure will be required to drive the screw. Further, the danger of the driver slipping is reduced to a minimum, thereby preventing accident.

NEWSBOY WAR HERO HONORED BY "PALS" IN CITY OF BOSTON

Bronze Tablet Erected to Memory of Boy Who Accounted for 31 of Foe

TABLET COSTING $2,000 IS PAID FOR BY CITY NEWSBOYS

"Scotty" Enlisted at Age of 15 to Fight Germans

BROOKLINE, Mass.—A bronze tablet, depicting the death of Albert Edward Scott, a 15-year-old newsboy who died beside his sho-sho gun in France after having killed and injured 31 Germans, will be dedicated here on October 28 with exercises at which William Jennings Bryan will make the principal address.

The memorial, which has been placed on the town hall, is the gift of newsboys of Greater Boston, of whom "Scotty" was one until he volunteered for service overseas. The tablet, reproduced from a painting by Gale Hoskins based on official photographs, cost the newsboys $2,000.

President Harding and Vice President Coolidge, expressing regret at their inability to be present for the dedication exercises, approved the memorial in letters made public here. The president, in a letter to Edward Keevin, director of the Roosevelt Newsboys' association which had charge of raising the funds, expressed approval of the plan to have Mr. Bryan make the principal address in his stead, adding that with the former secretary of state as speaker "a most appealing address" was assured.

Vice President Coolidge paid a tribute to the boys who sell papers, saying:

"Newsboys go everywhere, see everything and know everybody. There is no experience in which they do not have a part, and no life which they do not live. They are Americans. To their spirit, to their enterprise, to their courage, to their devotion, it is altogether fitting that a memorial should be erected bearing the name of one of the number who has become immortal."

A boys' band of 200 pieces from New York will have a part in the program.

"Scotty" dropped his newspapers one day to enlist, less than a month after he was graduated from grammar school. A few weeks later he was in France as a member of the 101st infantry regiment. At Epieds, July 23, 1918, a year later, the boy volunteered for extra-hazardous service.

"See that path 'Scott,'" said his lieutenant.

"That's your target, not a Hun must cross it."

"Yes, sir,' said Scotty, saluted and took up his sho-sho gun. Single-handed he held the path while he killed or crippled 31 Germans, then died from his wounds.

THREE-DAY SESSION OF LEGION FORMERLY OPENED ON MONDAY

for a half minute in silent tribute to the memory of the late F. W. Galbraith, national commander of the legion who was killed in a motor car accident near Indianapolis last June. Mr. Emery then proceeded to deliver his report to the convention.

The message from Mr Foch read:

"To My Brave Comrades of the American Legion: Today you are assembled in your annual convention. I send you greetings that come from the heart of one soldier to another, as you begin your deliberations. My prayers go up not only for all men and women who did their duty in the world war but for those who, having returned to the pursuits of peace, have banded themselves together to preserve these traditions of liberty, truth and justice for which we fought. It will be an added inexpressive pleasure soon to be with you."

General Pershing sent the following message:

"Greetings to the American Legion on opening day of its convention, and congratulations on its spirit which is to stand always for those things for which we fought."

Gompers Sends Greetings

George L. Berry, president of the International Printing Pressmen's union, a Legion delegate from Rogersville, Tenn., representing Samuel Gompers, brought a message of felicitation to the legion from the American Federation of Labor voted at the federation's last convention in Denver.

He told the convention that the American Federation of Labor stood unalterably opposed to sovietism or bolshevism in any form, that it was against direct action in the settling of disputes regarding wages and working conditions; that it stood for collective bargaining and consultation wherever possible, and if not possible in that way, then by arbitration.

The attitude of the federation, he said, was to resort to strikes only as a last resource.

"The American Federation of Labor and the American Legion," he said, "stand together in their opposition to the introduction of sovietism in the affairs of our republic, holding that a system that has been tried and failed, and a form of government that is in contravention to all that America has stood for from the beginning is destructive and should therefore, be opposed.

The convention adjourned for the noon recess following a memorial service in honor of Commander Galbraith. The memorial address was delivered by Colonel Foreman of Chicago.

PETERSON CASE IS ADJOURNED TO HEAR ADDITIONAL WITNESS

Final Hearing of Testimony to be Heard in Judge Hunt's Office Tuesday

The cases of Gust and Plumert Peterson, the former charged with driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor and the other with intoxication, were adjourned until Tuesday afternoon when the defendants' attorney desired further testimony in the case heard the police court Monday morning.

The Peterson brothers were arraigned on the charges Monday morning, October 24, when they both pleaded guilty. Officers who made the arrest of the men testified on the stand that the men were intoxicated. The defendants declared that they had not imbibed in intoxicating liquors. One additional witness will be called into the case Tuesday afternoon.

Albert Smeenk and John McLaughlin were arraigned and fined $7.50 each for intoxication Monday morning, while Alex Anderson and Hans Trulson paid similar amounts on the same charge Saturday.

Four speeders, including Eugene Goodenough, George Mlsna, Leo Fisher and L. H. Larson were fined $12.50 on a speeding charge in police court Saturday.

SEEK MISSING BADGER

GREEN BAY, Wis.—Search for Arthur C. Bazlen, missing vice president of the State Bank of Luxemburg, who disappeared last Thursday, is continuing today, although without apparent results. Bloodhounds Saturday picked up a trail which led to the railroad tracks where it was lost. It was learned that a string of freight cars was passing through and it was believed that Bazlen may have concealed himself in one of the box cars. Bazlen is said to be suffering from insomnia.

Too Many Teeth Are Pulled

Dr. J. F. Biddle, of the University of Pittsburgh, is one of those who believe that too many teeth are pulled. He says fifty per cent of the teeth which have been condemned lately could have been saved and should be. It is true that many diseases are caused by the presence of abscessed and painless teeth and it is necessary to pull many of them but there are at the same time many which could be saved. He so expressed himself recently at the gathering of the National Dental association at Milwaukee.

BOMB OUTRAGE IN HAVANA BELIEVED AIMED AT U. S.

Police Connect Explosion With Threats Against American Legation

HAVANA.—Considerable property damage was caused by the explosion of a bomb in the home of Fernando Gonzales Verdeuns, an architect, early Monday. Police believe the explosion might be connected with threats by radicals against Major General Crowder and the United States legation here. These threats were contained in proclamations distributed Saturday night in connection with the case of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, convicted of murder in a Massachusetts court.

Herrick Gets Black Hand Note

PARIS.—The flood of letters of protest in the case of Sacco and Vanzetti, the two Italians convicted of murder in Massachusetts, which Ambassador Herrick has received within the last fortnight included one of the old fashioned "black hand" type.

At the upper left hand corner a skull and cross-bones had been outlined with the word "Justice" underneath, while in the right hand corner a long dagger was depicted. The letter had been posted at Grenoble.

"Justice for Sacco and Vanzetti or death to Americans," was written at the bottom of the sheet.

ASPARAGUS HAS PEDIGREE

Asparagus was cultivated in Rome 200 years B. C., and Pliny, in his "History Naturalis," mentions that near Ravenna there grew a kind of which three heads weighed a pound. Asparagus flourished also in Greece. It is a native of several places near the sea in Britain. At Kynance cove, in Cornwall, a rocky island is called "Asparagus island," because at one time the plant was cultivated there. In ancient days all sprouts of young vegetables were called asparagus; and in comparatively modern times the artichoke, cardoon, seakale and alisander were included. Nowadays only the one is so called. Most probably all are wild sea-coast plants, and cultivated asparagus of an unpalatable order may still be found on British shores.

OPEN FIGHT ON REED PLAN FOR SOLDIER BONUS

soldier bonus proposition. He said he understood that the majority proposed to shut off discussion of the question by moving to table the amendment when offered.

"I'm saying to you (the republicans) and to those on this side of the chamber who do not agree with me, "Senator Reed added, "that a vote to table this amendment would be worse than a vote against the soldiers' bonus bill, because it will be a vote against the soldiers and in favor of the profiteers at the same time."

Calls G. O. P. to Fight

The bonus bill will be brought to a vote, Senator Reed continued, adding that the republicans might as well "harden your hearts, gird your loins, stiffen your necks and prepare to meet the issue."

Democratic leaders said that because of the reported plans of the republicans to lay the Reed amendment on the table, it would not be offered until there had been free discussion. If it is tabled then or defeated, it is the plan of democrats to offer the bonus bill as an amendment to the tax measure with a provision that the cost of carrying out its terms should be paid out of interest on the nation's foreign debt.

The proposed motion to table his amendment was "a coward's motion" Senator Reed declared, "to dodge" a direct vote.

Republicans Dodging?

"This is the third time you've dodged this question," said Senator Reed to the republicans, adding that "the slaughter" of the bonus bill was "in the interest of big money—the profiteer."

Attacking Secretary Mellon of the treasury department for recommending delay on the bonus, Senator Reed said: "The treasury is run by Big Business. It is Big Business."

"I have no hesitancy in saying," Senator Reed declared in conclusion, "that any man who votes to table this amendment casts a coward's vote. He not only votes to kill the soldiers' bonus but also votes to take the excess profits taxes off the profiteers."

School Master Taught Children to Smoke

When tobacco was first introduced into England, it was claimed that its use was a remedy for rheumatism which was responsible for many old women taking to it. It was as common to see a woman smoking a pipe as a man and indeed the habit was almost universal, for it is reported that children brought pipes to school with them. There is a note in an old diary found recently in England that a certain school teacher was said to have instructed the scholars in the art of smoking.

Kelly Slide in the Jungle

The Cape Colony elephant reserve, says the Christian Science Monitor, affords fine facilities for the observation of pachydermatous behavior. The huge beasts often amuse themselves by squatting on their haunches at the top of a steep bank and coasting down to the pond at the bottom. Baby elephants that evince fear are coaxed to the crown of the hill and shoved off.

Seeds 5,000 Years Old

A morning glory seed, reputed to be 5,000 years old, has been taken to Baltimore and planted in the garden of Mrs. W. Champlin Robinson, in Green Spring Valley. The seed is one of twelve found in the hand of a mummy of a young Egyptian girl which was recently removed to the United States. Ten of the seeds have already been planted, and all of them germinated.

MILL CITY SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA OPENS ITS SEASON OCTOBER 14

Famous Organization Survives Threatened Disruption; Oberhoffer Again Conducts

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn.—The Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra, one of the leading musical organizations of the country, opened its eighteenth concert year here October 14, after passing through a period that threatened its disruption. The Symphony will give weekly concerts until April 7, when it is expected the orchestra will start its usual tour.

Many of the world's artists, vocal and instrumental, will appear as soloists again this year.

The recent disbandment possibility, resulted from a difference between the orchestra association and the musicians' union. Refusal of the Symphony to play at a local park, after entering into a contract to do so, with the board of park commissioners caused the break. The Symphony musicians, affiliated with the American Feeration of Labor, refused to appear and give concerts because the Park Board commissioners hired another band, whose members did not belong to the Federation, to play at other parks.

Thereupon, E. L. Carpenter, president of the orchestral association, with the backing of the guarantors of the Symphony, stated the orchestra would not be continued unless the musicians receded from their stand and allowed the orchestral association to control its appearances. After prolonged conferences with union heads in the east, the local park board was removed from the unfair list and the differences settled.

Emil Oberhoffer, the Symphony's only conductor since its organization in 1903, will wield his baton again when the first concert begins. Practically the same group of musicians will play again this year as did last.

KEEP EXCURSIONISTS AWAY FROM NEWPORT AIM OF "REGULARS"

Oppose Movement to Develop Bathing Beach as Another Coney Island

NEWPORT, R. I.—Newport for the people of Newport—summer folk and the regular residents, not for excursionists—is the slogan of the Newport Improvement society. The fashionable summer colony has organized to oppose a tendency regarded as containing possibilities of making Newport a Coney Island. Excursionists should not be attracted; the long stretch of beach on the water front should be developed as a bathing place exclusively and not as an amusement resort the society believes.

A corporation of summer residents has been formed to make a bid for the beach property with a view to conservative development. Amusements now considered as objectionable and attractive only to transient visitors would be eliminated and excursion traffic would be discouraged under the plans of those interested.

The Newport Improvement society composed for the most part of members of the wealthy and exclusive summer colony, turned over to a special committee headed by George Henry Warren of New York the matter of considering the future of the public bathing beach. This beach is distinct from that stretch of sand known as Bailey's Beach, patronized exclusively by the fashionable members of the summer colony.

The committee submitted resolutions, which were adopted, declaring against development of the beach on popular lines. With summer residents paying 70 per cent of the city's taxes, Mr. Warren asserted they would organize and refuse payment on assessed valuations to prevent depreciation of real estate values that would come, he said, from any further opening up of the beach. If necessary the matter would go to the courts, he announced.

ANOTHER SMART YOUNGSTER

Mr. and Mrs. Jones had been invited to a friend's home for tea, and the time had arrived for preparing for the visit.

"Come along, dearie," said Mrs. Jones to her three-year-old son, "and have your face washed."

"Don't want to be washed," came the reply.

"But," said mother, "you don't want to be a dirty little boy, do you? I want my little boy to have a nice clean face for the ladies to kiss."

Upon this persuasion he gave way and was washed.

A few minutes later he stood watching his father washing.

"Ha, ha, daddy!" he cried, "I know why you're washing!"

Greek Temple Unearthed

Greek archaeologists have unearthed an imposing temple at Rerras, Thessaly. The structure is in an excellent state of preservation and is stated to be as large as the temple of Jupiter, at Olympia. The bronze inscriptions establish the date as that of 400 B. C. Tablets have also been found bearing indications of laws and resolutions of ancient civilization. This is the second temple which has been discovered within a month, the first having been found near the city of Volo. The excavations are continuing.

IOWA TO GO EAST FOR YALE CONTEST NEXT YEAR, REPORT

Coaches of Two Respective Schools are Brothers; no Home and Home Series

CHICAGO, Ill.—From reliable sources it has been learned that Iowa and Yale will engage in an intersectional football game in the New Haven bowl next year. In fact, all that remains to clinch the struggle is the signing of the contracts.

Howard Jones, the Iowa coach, and Tad Jones, who develops football teams at New Haven, are brothers. Talk of such a contest was heard last summer, but it has now developed into a reality. It is also understood Iowa was anxious to play Yale this fall, but Tad Jones, knowing the strength of the Hawkeyes, postponed the meeting for a year.

According to information, there will be no home and home series. Iowa will play Yale on the Blue eleven's gridiron, but Old Eli will not come west for a return engagement. This is to be regretted, as Chicago and Princeton have a home and home series and there is every reason to believe Harvard and Illinois may enter into a similar contract.

Intersectional struggles are growing in favor. Gridiron fans are anxious to see new teams and players, and the interest aroused over games between elevens of two sections makes the short gridiron season more exciting.

YALE SHOWING UP AS STRONGEST OF EASTERN "BIG 3"

NEW YORK—Yale, so far undefeated in her 1921 gridiron campaign, appears strongest of the Big Three, as the dates for the annual "Big Three" engagements approach. Harvard and Princeton, both of which have squirmed out at the small end of the football horn this season, will clash next Saturday. The following week the Tigers meet Yale and on November 19 Eli faces Crimson.

In six games the Bull Dog has scored 158 points against their opponents, 14.

Harvard and Princeton have had considerable trouble. Harvard has scored 84 points against opponents' 34.

Princeton has scored 74 points against their opponents' 20.

GOVERNOR BLAINE AT GAME DESPITE DOWNPOUR OF RAIN

MADISON, Wis.—A steady rain did not keep Governor Blaine and his party from the Badger-Gopher game. Bundled up in blankets the governor attended the annual event as the guest of the Chi Phi fraternity and cheered and rooted for the Badger team.

Despite the rain, coming in sheets at times, the governor stayed the whole game and sitting with the boys he declared that he had had "a bully time."

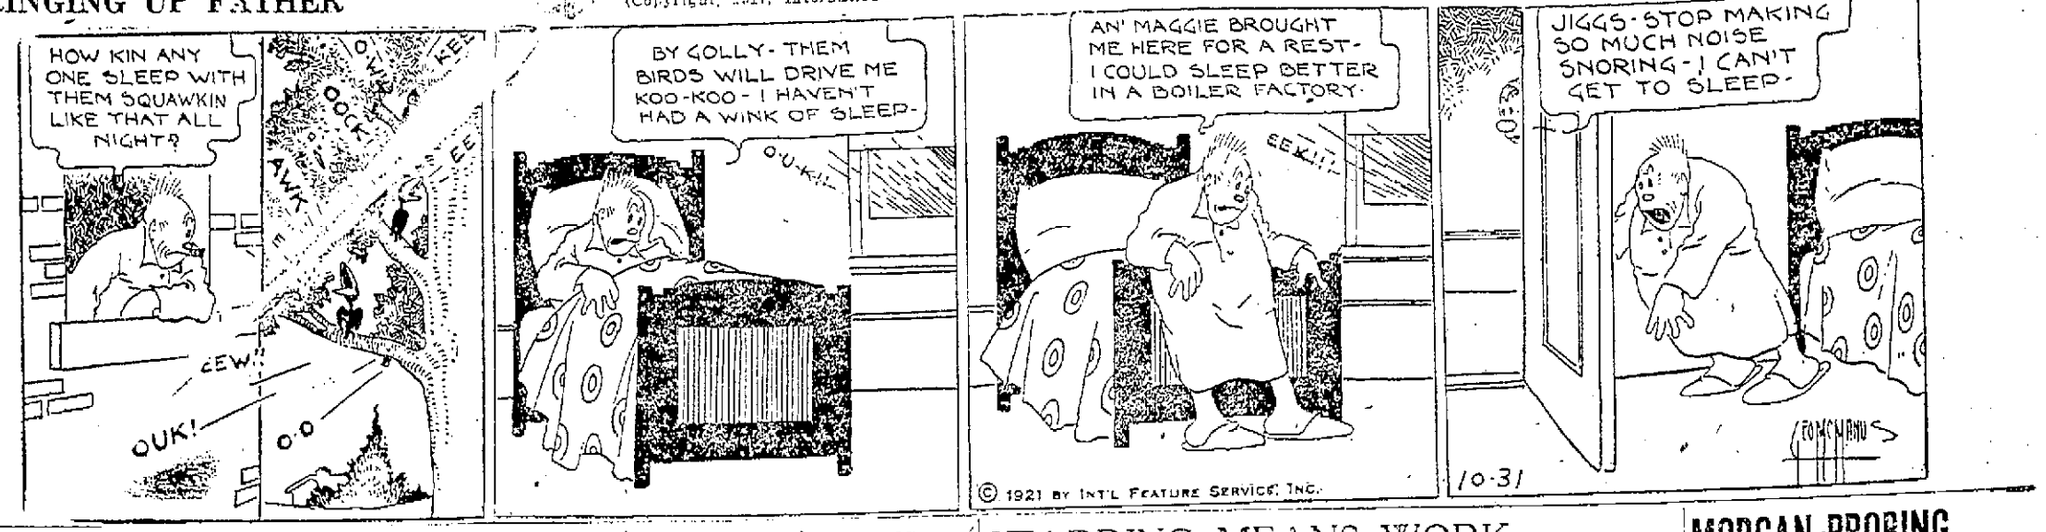

The Life of a Pearl

The pearl resembles man in that it is born to die. Care for it as you will its life can no more be prolonged indefinitely than ours can, because it has an organic constitution. If you tell me that specimens have been found in the tombs of the ancient Egyptians, I ask, what became of them? Those relics of a by-gone civilization crumbled into dust on exposure to the air.

The man who has just moved has a fairly good idea of war ruins.

WISCONSIN SHOWS TITLE CLASS IN OVERWHELMING VICTORY OVER MINNESOTA

CHICAGO, Ill.—Victory of Wisconsin over Minnesota, 35 to 0, which stamps the Badgers as the best Cardinal eleven since the championship team of 1912 and the defeat of Harvard by Centre, 6 to 0, were the salient features of last Saturday's football games.

The Badgers demonstrated their superiority over the Gophers in every department of football and can be rightfully considered a strong western conference championship possibility. Minnesota was no match for Coach Richards' men, who were on edge for the battle and played the sort of football expected of Wisconsin teams.

To Have Week of Rest

The Cardinal now will take things easy for a week after which serious preparation will start for the Michigan and Chicago battles. The Badgers will not be in action Saturday, but will clash with the Wolverines at Madison November 12 and Chicago on Stagg field, November 19.

Since the opening of the season, Wisconsin has given every indication of being a team of great potentional power. An analysis of the team shows the weight and speed to be equally distributed while the backfield is composed of men who can hit the line, drive off the tackles, run the ends or forward pass. The ball carriers are given the necessary support from the forwards while the ends take care of their offensive and defensive play in a pleasing manner.

Offense of Teams Show

Michigan and Illinois engaged in a great battle which the former won, 3 to 0. Neither eleven can be said to be as strong as teams of previous years and neither showed the slashing offense which has characterized former teams. Team play at times was poor, but the tackling was hard.

The ring around the rosy offense employed by both elevens did not impress close followers of football, while no effort is being made to criticize this style of play, it looks amateurish in the extreme as compared with a smooth working offense of the shifting variety. Coach Yost of Michigan and Zuppke of Illinois may have their reasons for using the style, but neither eleven displayed the drive characteristic of the shifting offense.

Third Defeat For Illini

It is the third straight conference game Illinois has lost and indications point to two more defeats at the hands of Chicago and Ohio State unless the team takes a tremendous brace. While the eleven is severely handicapped through injury to Carney, Crangle and Pedeu, there does not seem to be the old Illinois dash in the work of this year's team. This may be partially accounted for by the number of green players on the eleven, but in justice to Coach Zuppke it must be said he has not the material of former years.

Iowa, another strong contender for Big Ten honors, waddled through the mud to win from Purdue, 13 to 6. The Boilermakers gave the Hawkeyes a harder fight than expected, but the poor field conditions made good football impossible. Coach Jones was satisfied to win the game by any sort of score, and will start preparation for the game with Minnesota at Minneapolis next Saturday.

Maroons Prepare for Ohio

Chicago experienced little difficulty in a 55 to 0 win over the University of Colorado eleven. The Rocky Mountain conference team was no match for the Maroons, but the game afforded Coach Stagg ample opportunities to test the caliber of a number of players. It also was just the sort of contest needed to keep the men on edge for the important game with Ohio state next Saturday.

Maroons and Buckeyes will start the hardest sort of preparation today for Saturday's struggle, which will eliminate the loser from all claims to the Big Ten title. Both elevens are well equipped with close and open attacks, and each is fortified with players who may spring the unexpected. It should be the best game of the year in western conference football, with the possible exception of the contest between Chicago and Wisconsin two weeks later.

Northwestern won its first game of the season by taking Frank Haggerty's De Paul eleven into camp, 31 to 0. Coach McDevitt used an entirely new offense, with the result more ground was gained and the players got into the formations in a spirit which augurs well for success in their game with Purdue next Saturday. A victory was just the thing needed at Evanston to put more life into the team.

Notre Dame Beats Indiana

Notre dame won undisputed championship of the Hoosier state by winning from its old rival, Indiana, 28 to 7. This contest is one of the most important on the schedule of both elevens, and the season is usually considered successful with the winning of the struggle, despite results of other contests. Notre Dame employed its usual slashing attack through the line and off the tackles.

Nebraska, which is looming as the strongest eleven in the Missouri Valley conference, defeated Oklahoma, 1920 champion of the valley association, 44 to 0. The Cornhuskers are an aggregation of power, and this game should fit them for the great struggle with Pittsburgh in the Smoky city next Saturday.

Kansas defeated Charles Bachman's Kansas Aggies, 21 to 7; Missouri won from Drake, 6 to 0, and Ames lost to Washington university of St. Louis, 2 to 0, in other games of note in the Missouri conference.

SIDELIGHTS ON BADGER VICTORY

MADISON, Wis.—Gov. Blaine, sitting among the boys as guest of the Chi Phi fraternity, was more than a spectator. Gov. Blaine in a voice reduced to a whisper from cheering, was heard to remark after the game that such victory warmed his heart.

Time and time again when a Badger player broke away to race for the Gopher goal, the rooters asked each other who it was only to learn time after time, that it was Rollie Williams. Scintillating Rollie was the real feature of the game.

It was through the efforts of Gov. Blaine that 4,000 of the alumni were able to see the game. When he was told that the new concrete stands would not be finished in time for the big day, the executive signed an emergency appropriation of $2,500 to enable extra workmen to finish the stands.

With 28,000 rooters braving the inclement weather a new record was set for Camp Randall. It is planned to have additional seats for next year but it is apparent that Wisconsin can not build stands enough to hope to sell tickets to all who desire them.

Coach Richards' pet shift that has long been kept under cover was one that made the famous Minnesota shift look amateurish. It was on this play that the Badger backfield broke away time and time again to make sensational gains.

It was the worst defeat that the Badgers have given to the Gophers since 1897 when the score was 39 to 0. Four of Richards' standbys left for the showers in the last quarter and still the team had Minnesota on the run.

The sole criticism of the fans came in the entrance arrangements. Narrow aisles and undue delay caused jams that injured several women and children and held up enormous crowds while the game started.

Alumni young and old went frantic when the Badgers held and then made their first touchdown. They could early see that the Badgers were going to win and everyone felt happy. For the first time in years the Gopher band had no opportunity to play their scoring song and that was as good to the Badgers' ears as the score was to the eyes.

Martineau, Teberg and Wallace performed well for the Gophers but their efforts went for naught.

Minnesota had a large delegation of faithful fans on hand for the game and their band and the fans stuck with their team to the last whistle. It was the kind of faithful loyalty that no Wisconsin rooter could help but admire.

"Michigan and Chicago next," is the Badgers slogan now.

Only Coaches Yost and Stagg stand between the Badgers and their first championship since 1912.

Planes soaring and dipping overhead and antics on the field amused the crowd between the halves. It was a crowd that was easy to amuse after the first half ended with the Badgers in a good lead.

Silver dollars tinkled into the pails of fair coeds between halves when that novel method was used to spur on the Memorial union drive. Even wheelbarrows were used to cart the dollars off the field, and while the tellers were not able to give the exact amount raised it is estimated that a $15,000 boost was given to the drive in this way.

It was a "hot time in the old town," in Madison Saturday night, it was a victory worth while celebrating over any team, but it was doubly popular when Minnesota fell. Minnesota has done more to keep the Badgers from championship in past years than any other team. That explains it.

Arnold Oss was on the sidelines, but the big back was unable to get into the game.

There was glory enough for all the Badgers. They all played a great game but the backfield had chance to scintillate. Richards' line improves with each contest.

With two dependable quarters like Williams and Gibson, Richards is well fixed for that department.

ALL DANVILLE TURNS OUT IN CELEBRATION OF CENTRE'S VICTORY

DANVILLE, Ky.—Danville has had a riot of enthusiasm brewing in its system for a year. It got it out Saturday night. The victory of "Ole Centre" over the mighty warriors of Harvard, 6 to 0, was the excuse, if, indeed, an excuse was needed. The town, worked up to a frenzy over the prospects of their pets turning on the Crimsons this year, let go whoop, shout and yell when the news was flashed over the wires that the fondest hopes had been realized.

The fire department, with bells clanging and horns screeching, dashed through the crowded streets; bells were rung, whistles were blown and automobile horns sounded in the demonstration.

The college student body, denied the privilege of attending the game, got rid of its grouch all in a lump. Old folks and young, students and citizens, joined in the celebration that lasted far into the night.

"HAPPIEST MAN IN THE WORLD," - M'MILLIN SAYS

CAMBRIDGE, Mass.—"Bo" McMillin, Centre college star, said he had reached the zenith of his football ambitions when he crossed the Harvard goal Saturday. "I am the happiest man in the world," was the way he expressed it after the game.

"Last year," he added, "when Capt. Horween offered me the ball used in the game we lost I refused it and told him that to the victor belonged the spoils. I also told him that I would be back next year to win the pumpkin. Now I've got it and I'll keep it for my kids."

He disclaimed all individual credit, saying that without the play of Armstrong, Roberts and the rest he could not have scored. "I just tried to carry out orders," he said.

STEAM PRESSURE COOKERS IN ECUADOR

A correspondent writes us that the Jivaro Indians has a steam "pressure cooker" all their own. An earthenware jug or pot, small at the bottom, bellying out at the middle to about 15 inches and then into a narrow neck, ends in a lipped mouth. A grid or false bottom of split bamboo is built about three inches from the bottom of the pot, the space between is filled with water; the food—meats or vegetables or both—is then placed in this grid and the top of the pot is covered with several large palm leaves, criss-crossed and tied down with vines. The pot is then placed upon the fire and the food is thoroughly cooked in a very short time. This "barest" method has probably been used by the Jivaro Indians for centuries, and our correspondent says he has enjoyed many a monkey and parrot cooked by this method.

THE EARTH IS HIS PIPE-BOWL

"Daggs" smoking is the African equivalent to the opium habit of China. It is under the ban, but some of the native addicts managed to indulge themselves. Daggs is an herb and in order to smoke it the victim makes two holes in the earth connected by a passage between them at the lower part. One is filled with leaves and lighted and then covered with a layer of clay. A reed is introduced through the underground passage and this is then sealed with a wad of clay, and the native consumes the smoke with water. Under the influence, he is buoyed to the skies and trivial incidents of his youth are recalled in an exaggerated manner. Every encounter is a great victory and the victim is the hero. As the influence departs, the smoker sinks into a heavy sleep to awaken a mental and physical wreck until he takes another smoke.

Hooked-nose Eels of Hawaii

It has just been announced from the Leland Stanford, Jr., university, that as a result of the eruption of Mauna Loa, Hawaii, two years ago, six specimens of fish entirely new to science were thrown up on the shore of the islands. One was a conger eel with hooks on its snout, resembling blackberry thorns. They were all deep-water fish, coming from a depth of 150 to 1,000 feet.

Imitation Lightning

Man's nearest approach to duplicating nature's own lightning—an accomplishment that means the quadrupling of the range of power stations—was accomplished when a million volts of electricity produced a nine-foot spark—a world record achieved by engineers in the Pittsfield plant of the General Electric company, as the triumphant reward of 20 years' work.

SPORT BRIEFS

PARIS.—Miss Lins of England established a world's record for women by running 100 yards in 11 4-5 seconds.

NEW YORK.—Royal Johnson, negro runner representing the Thompson Steel A. A. of Pittsburgh, won the National A. A. U. ten mile championship in 53:20 4-5.

GREEN BAY, Wis.—Tasting defeat for the first time since their professional debut, the Green Bay Packers were beaten by the Rock Island Independents, whose hard line plunging the Packers were unable to stop. Score: Rock Island, 13; Packers, 0.

TRAVELING ON A LIGHT-BEAM

Emile Belot, the French astronomer, suggests that if one were able to straddle a light ray (which travels 186,000 miles a second) and thus voyage through space, observations along the route would be exceedingly interesting. It would take only a little more than a second to reach the moon and in four minutes and twenty seconds one would arrive at the planet Mars. One would get as far as Jupiter in thirty-five minutes, to Saturn in seventy minutes, to Uranus in two and one half hours, and to Neptune in four hours. On the way one could come across a great many comets without tails, nebulous bodies of spherical shape which are rarely seen from the earth. It would take two years to get outside the sphere of the sun's attraction, and by that time our orb of day would look like nothing more important than a big star.

STARRING MEANS WORK, SAYS CRIMSON BACK

GEORGE OWEN, 19-YEAR-OLD HARVARD HALFBACK

By BOB DORMAN

BOSTON, Mass.—George Owen, 19-year-old star halfback of the Harvard Varsity, takes a serious view of life and its problems.

And it is perhaps this very seriousness that has made him one of the most feared backs on any football eleven in the east.

"My studies to me are just as important as my work on the football field.

"And I believe that playing football has helped me immensely in my scholastic work.

"Even when I was nothing but a kid, I learned that if I was going to be a successful football player, I must learn to concentrate my attention on the game and on its varied plays and problems.

"If it's practice, it's the coaches and what they are trying to teach you, that must be concentrated on.

"If you don't do this you are apt to miss something that may be invaluable to you later on.

"If it's during a game? Well, it's pretty evident that you have to keep your eyes open then.

"Now that habit of concentrating grows on you.

"You can carry it into the class room with you, if you will.

"And it aids you immensely in following the routine of class work.

"When you play college football, you have to work, and work hard.

"And like concentration, work gets to be a habit—that is, with some.

"And that same habit of work, if followed out, will prevent any worries on the score of scholastic standing interfering with your playing football."

THREE HALLOWE'EN PARTIES ARE GIVEN AT LA CRESCENT

LA CRESCENT, Minn.—The Epworth league of the M. E. church gave a Hallowe'en party at the home of Mrs. Ed Smith Saturday evening.

The evening was spent in playing games and Hallowe'en stunts. At eleven thirty a delicious lunch was served.

Mrs. A. Lilly entertained the K. K. Klub and their husbands Saturday evening at a Hallowe'en party. Mrs. Fitting as usual took head prize and Mr. Joe Thompson second.

The teachers of the public school gave a Hallowe'en party to the 7th and 8th grades Friday evening at the school house. A basket lunch was prepared by each girl and purchased by the boys.

Mr. John Welch and Mr. Philip Fitting spent Monday in St. Paul.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Welch returned from a visit with their son and daughter, Raymond of Minneapolis and Edith of Northern Wisconsin.

Father Reisling, a missionary, held services at the Catholic church early in the week.

Dan Cameron, a member of the football team of the La Crosse high school, returned Sunday after attending the game at Madison Saturday.

Where They Eat the Octopus

The meat of the octopus is regarded as a food delicacy by natives living along the shores of the Mediterranean sea. They are frequently caught by women who walk along the rocky shores and find the octopus in a rocky crevice. His home is usually betrayed by the presence of a pile of crab shells and other debris outside the entrance to his establishment. The women do not fear the octopus in shallow water and they hook them and drag them from their crannies and pull them ashore. It seems that they are only to be feared when in deep water. They do not hesitate to attack a fish, measuring eight feet across.

Knocking congress is tilting at a windmill.

MORGAN PROBING THE AFFAIRS OF CO-OP SOCIETIES

Examination of Thirty-six Rochdale Companies Opens on Monday

MADISON Wis.—Examination into the affairs of the 36 Wisconsin Rochdale companies will be commenced Monday by Attorney General William J. Morgan, with H. W. Harriman, of the securities division of the railroad commission, and an accountant of the department of markets handling the investigation. Books of the companies will be gone over at Racine, their central office.

The attorney general has directed Mr. Harriman to determine the assets and the liabilities of the companies, which are said to have sold $750,000 of debentures in Wisconsin, to find the names of the stockholders who control the companies through their stock holdings, and to go into all details of their activities.

It was the plan of the Wisconsin Rochdale companies to organize $1,000 corporations, exempt from the securities law regulations, and then to issue $22,500 of $75 notes for each of the companies. As soon as this amount had been subscribed grocery stores would be opened.

The Wisconsin Co-operative society, which is said to have absorbed the Rochdale companies, plans to submit a new form of organization to the railroad commission for approval, under which it intends to do business in the state in conformity to the blue sky law. Suit for dissolution of the society is pending while the new form of organization is being worked out.

STRUGGLING AFTER LIQUID COAL

Reports from Germany indicate that scientists of that country are endeavoring to increase the efficiency of the coal supply by reducing it to a liquid form, by which more heat would be secured from it. Efforts in this direction have been many. Berthelot, the famous French chemist, first succeeded in liquefying coal more than sixty years ago. He treated it with chemicals and melted it in sealed glass tubes at a temperature of 265 degrees centigrade. A Russian Ipatieff, improved the process by carrying it on under pressure; but it remained a curious rather than practical achievement. In 1919 a German, Professor Bergius, discovered a way to liquefy all kinds of coal and even peat and wood. His process requires a temperature of 400 degrees centigrade, but it is said not to be expensive, and it produces a liquid that can be refined to petroleum of almost any consistency, and that contains scarcely any waste. Berthelot's artificially made coal oil was almost 40 per cent waste. It is evident that the discovery at once doubles the fuel value of coal, especially of the poorer and cheaper grades.

SENATE COMMITTEE REPORTS ON VETERAN RELIEF ACTIVITIES

Recommend Construction of Federal Hospitals to Care for Service Men

RELIEF EXPENSE NOT JUSTIFIED BY RESULTS DECLARES REPORT

Urges Standardization of Vocational Phase of Work

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Cancellation by the veterans' bureau of all contracts with state, municipal and private hospitals not established prior to July 1, 1917, and with all others found unsuitable was included among administrative reforms in veteran relief activities recommended by the special senate committee investigating the subject in a report published Monday.

Declaring the need of hospital construction was unquestioned, the committee recommended an appropriation of $18,100,000 for this purpose, and in addition that all government hospitals, including soldiers' homes not needed by the army or navy, be turned over to the veterans' bureau.

Asserting the government had failed to obtain "results commensurate with the large expenditure," in rehabilitation work, the committee reported with "deep regret" the "melancholy fact" that out of a total of 256,000 approved applicants for vocational training up to last July 1 only 5,655 have been rehabilitated, 108,000 having entered training up to that date. Of the 65,000 eligible for training without pay who have not entered training, the committee found that a "vast majority" had not done so because of their "inability to support themselves without pay." The chief recommendation of the committee in the vocational phase of the work was standardization of training courses while permitting the applicant to select as far as possible his own vocation.

Other administrative reforms recommended by the committee included issuance of rules and regulations for the maintenance of order and discipline, frequent and thorough inspection of hospitals and elimination of politics from appointments and expenditures of funds for hospitalization without reference to "insistent but ill-advised local demands" or "political interference" of any sort.

THE VIBRATING SPIDER

If you are enough of a nature student to give any attention to the spiders in the garden you have probably, at some time or other, noticed one swinging rapidly back and forth as regularly as the pendulum of the clock but more rapidly. Ambrose H. Marion, a nature student of Springdale, Conn., watched one for an hour. It was a female and above her web were stretched two cables each about five feet long. She was perched on the middle of one and from her body to the upper hawser was a short section of web. By pulling the latter she managed to swing back and forth for a distance of about six inches. She kept doing this actively until he was tired of watching her. Now why all this exertion? Was she out to the air? Was it simply a vagary or was the exercise to assist digestion of a fly feast that she had just enjoyed, or do you give it up as he does? Not very important perhaps, but Fabre would have worked six months to solve the riddle. Later he concluded, the whole performance was a coquettish lure for the unfortunate mate, who, after a brief honeymoon, was destined to be gobbled up by his too ardently affectionate spouse. He didn't witness the tragedy, he writes, but saw the corpus—what there was left of it.

THE DUFFS — FIFTY-FIFTY — BY ALLMAN

In The MOVIES

AT THE THEATERS TODAY

Rivoli—Richard Barthelmess in D. W. Griffith special, "The Love Flower"; Brownie comedy, "Society Dogs."

Majestic—Lionel Barrymore in "The Great Adventure"; comedy.

Riviera—Jubilee Girls in "The Politician"; Mack Sennett's comedy, "A Small Town Idol"; Carter Dellaven comedy, "Kids is Kids"; Riviera orchestra.

Casino—Metro classic, "The Hope," enacted by an all-star Metro cast; Jimmy Aubrey comedy, "The Trouble Hunter."

Strand—Alice Lake in "Uncharted Seas"; Paramount Magazine.

NEW PRICES AT MAJESTIC

The entire family—dad, mother and the kid—can go to the movies now for a quarter (plus three cents for Uncle Sam) and see feature photoplays at the Majestic. Today starts the new week-day policy of the Majestic, which includes five and ten cent seats matinee or night in the balcony, and the pictures shown will be the best notwithstanding the lowered price is evidenced by the fact that the first picture under the new regime is one of Lionel Barrymore's—"The Great Adventure." With 20 cents the top price for any seat in the house, it is expected that the Majestic will be crowded at most performances.

"The Great Adventure," which marks the debut of Lionel Barrymore as a comedy screen star is from the Arnold Bennett stage comedy of the same name, which marked up such a successful run. From all reports, the picture is surpassing the stage production.

In announcing Mr. Barrymore in a comedy role, the Majestic takes occasion to explain that "comedy" does not mean "comic." The star's role is dignified and the comedy refined and no custard-pie laughs are promised. Suffice it to say that Mr. Barrymore, in part of the picture, plays the part of his own valet, incidentally attending what is supposed to be his own funeral.

GRIFFITH SPECIAL AT RIVOLI

Every time we see a Griffith picture we are compelled to repeat one statement. He is in a class by himself.

We can't help but say it over again after "The Love Flower," witnessed at the Rivoli Theater last evening.

Matchless revelations of beauty, strength and excitement prevail this picture. It is an unusual sort of a Griffith production, for it borders on the melodramatic, in which the master hand injects a wonderful deep-breathed romance of the out-of-doors; happy, thrilling and delightful, with scenes of quickening beauty and a gallery of scenic splendor. It is a story with a strange and vibrant spirit, taken from the Collier's Weekly tale, "Black Beach," by Ralph Stock, done with that zest and fascination of story-telling only Mr. Griffith can provide.

Richard Barthelmess, who has been so popular in most of the last Griffith productions, is admirably cast as a wealthy young plantation owner in this production and adds new laurels to his already won honors. Carol Dempster, the daughter, whose love for her father forms the main thread of the plot, is charmingly delightful, vivacious and spirited. Her daring, her artistic ability, her charm, her everything was admirable. Then too, there was George MacQuarrie, as the father, and Anders Randolph, as the hounding detective, who are both deserving of special mention.

MACK SENNETT COMEDY AND JUBILEE GIRLS, RIVIERA

The opening scenes of Mack Sennett's six-reel super-comedy, "A Small Town Idol," featured today and Tuesday at the Riviera are set in that kind of a town where the railroad track and a straggling stream provide the sunburnt inhabitants with their only ideas of motion. Ben Turpin is the hero; Jimmy Finlayson is the villain; charming Phyllis Haver is the country maid and shares heroine honors with Marie Prevost, who is seen in later episodes when the plot shifts to a city wherein Turpin, unjustly accused at home, takes refuge and becomes associated with the piquant Marie in a thrilling motion picture production of which she is the feminine principal and he is the puissant hero in chaps, on the fame of this film Ben returns in triumph to his village home. But things have moved rapidly there during his absence. The love-lorn maid is about to be condemned to matrimony with the wicked villain and a scandal of tremendous consequence has broken out in the village church. Charley Murray, the constable is hardly able to quell the riotous deportment of the citizens, and Turpin is, by a sequence of strange accidents, nearly lynched—not for his acting, but for his glibness with his gun.

The Jubilee Girls' offering is a musical comedy, "The Politician." A Carter Dellaven comedy, "Kids is Kids" completes the bill.

"THE HOPE"—CASINO

The eruption of the volcano in "The Hope," the spectacular melodrama which is now being shown at the Casino Theater, is one of the most thrilling scenic effects that the colossal Metro production contains.

In "The Trouble Hunter," a Jimmy Aubrey comedy on the same program the popular and amazingly energetic comedian is even busier than usual. As a Social Error, hungry and disconsolate, he tries to steal soup. His method is ingenious, but ineffective, and results in his falling into the restaurant section of the Thalia, an oasis in a prohibition desert. He is thrown out, of course, but returns after coming into possession of a lead quarter. This "home made money" already had been passed once in the place and was likely to make serious trouble if it appeared again, but the Social Error did not know it. In he went, and out. The fun in "The Trouble Hunter" fast and furious.

NO LEAVES WASTED AT WISCONSIN "U"

MADISON, Wis.—Thousands of dollars of leaves may go to waste elsewhere, but not so at the University of Wisconsin. All the leaves on the campus are gathered up to be used in banking the trees, to protect them from the cold weather. Tree experts also realize the value of leaves in enriching the soil.

"Not a single leaf is burned," said Mr. Franz A. Aust, associate professor of landscape gardening at the University of Wisconsin. "All are utilized in banking the trees during the winter months."

Cow and Fish Harnessed Together

An anti-mosquito experiment is being made in the bayou districts of Louisiana, which consists of making use of the efforts of the cow and the minnow working together in double harness, one might say. The minnows devour the larvae of the mosquito, but the eggs of the larvae are often inaccessible to the minnow for the reason that they are among the thick grass where the fish cannot get at them. In order to clear the way for the minnow, the land along the edge of the bayou has been turned into pasture and the cows keep the grass along the edge clipped so that the operations of the minnow may not be interfered with.

Luminous Button as a Life-saver

By the use of an infinitesimal amount of radium, it has been made possible to manufacture luminous buttons which are supplied with tack-like points to be thrust into wood or cardboard objects or secured with a catch for pendent purposes. These may be hung upon cords controlling electric lights, or may be secured to your bedroom slippers so that they may be found in the dark or may be secured to the poison bottle so that it will not be mistaken in the dark for some other substance. There are many other uses to which the luminous button may be put.

LA CROSSE IS READY FOR BIG CELEBRATION TONIGHT, HALLOWEEN

House Parties, Dances and Parades of Youngsters Feature the Evening's Festivities

Tonight's the night that witches, goblins—and boys and girls will unhinge gates and put them on porches—hold forth, for it is Hallowe'en. Aside from the traditional and mythical significance of the night, it is the one night in the year when young and old may disport themselves, wear false faces and ghish costumes, parade the streets, visit neighbors and scare the folk half to death with their outlandish appearance.

Innumerable house parties will be given in La Crosse. At several of the dance halls there will be Hallowe'en dancing parties at which the guests will wear costumes. The decorations will be black cats, witches sailing through the air on brooms, and huge pumpkins with glaring eyes and gaping mouths.

Tonight the small boy will be in the seventh heaven of delight. It will be a million-dollar opportunity for him to sally forth and rub soap on windows, take gates on their hinges and play other pranks. The police department, therefore, urges everybody to take all gates into the house at sundown tonight and also anything else that is movable for it's All-Hallowe'en and the witches and goblins will be out in force.

Beware!

LEGAL NOTICES

NOTICE TO CAPITALISTS AND INVESTORS

Pursuant to a resolution adopted by the Common Council of the City of La Crosse on October 24th, 1921, the undersigned Mayor and City Clerk of the City of La Crosse will receive proposals until the 15th day of November, 1921, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon of that day, at the office of the City Clerk for the purchase of certain Street Improvements Bonds of the City of La Crosse to the amount of One Hundred and Ninety-Nine Dollars ($199.00) each, 19 in number, issued by the City of La Crosse for the purpose of grading certain streets and alleys in the City of La Crosse.

These bonds bear interest at the rate of six per cent per annum payable semi-annually on the 15th day of May and November of each year and the first installment of interest is payable on the 15th day of May, 1922. Both principal and interest are payable at the office of the City Treasurer of the City of La Crosse.

The bonds are dated November 15th, 1921 and payable one each year, the first bond to be due and payable on the 15th day of November, 1922.

At the time and place above stated such sealed proposals for the purchase of said bonds will be opened and the issue of bonds awarded to the highest bidder for cash provided that no bid at less than par will be accepted and the right to reject any and all bids not deemed to be for the interest of the City is expressly reserved.

The bonds will be sold together in one lot or separately as may be deemed most advantageous for said City according to the bids received.

All bids should be indorsed "Proposals for Street Improvement Bonds," and addressed to the City Clerk, La Crosse, Wisconsin.

Dated at La Crosse, Wisconsin, October 22nd, 1921.

A. A. BENTLEY,
Mayor of the City of La Crosse.
M. R. BIRNBAUM,
City Clerk.

State of Wisconsin, In Circuit Court, for La Crosse County.

CATFISH

Maud was bored to death. Her visitor was one of those disagreeable persons who delight in playing havoc with other people's characters. After about half an hour of scandalizing Mrs. Jones, the butcher's wife, a great Persian cat stalked majestically into the room in which they sat. Maud's visitor shuddered.

"Don't you like cats?" queried Maud.

"Ugh! I detest them," was the disgusted reply.

Maud puckered up her brows in feigned astonishment. "How peculiar," was her comment. "I should have imagined that two such equal dispositions would have got on splendidly together."—London Telegraph.

Hard Boiled

The black-haired waitress, very much out of sorts, sailed haughtily up to the table at which sat the grouchy breakfast customer. She slammed down the cutlery snatched a napkin from a pile and tossed it in front of him.

Then striking a furious pose—

"Watcha want?" she snapped.

"Couple eggs," growled the customer.

"How ya want 'em?"

"Just like you are."—Life.

COLLEGE CHUMS!

Sixty years is the span between the youngest and oldest students of the University of Kentucky at Lexington. They're chums, too. Roscoe C. Kash, freshman, is 14. He is taking a pre-medical course. Mrs. Stoughton A. Fletcher, 74, is a special student for advanced courses in French and Spanish.

HINDENBERG AS A DEACON

It's rather difficult to think of Von Hindenburg, German field marshal, as a church deacon, but here he is. In silken robe and carrying a nosegay of flowers, he is leaving church after the festival of the Braunsberg Cathedral.

PACKING SHARES WEAK

Threatened Labor Trouble Causes Drop; Domestic Oils Sag

NEW YORK—Threatened labor disturbances accounted for weakness of some of the packing shares on the stock exchange Monday. Wilson & Company common lost five points and the preferred dropped 15 points. Mexican Petroleum and the higher priced domestic oils sagged, but European oils and minor domestics were firm. Occasional dealings in rails were mainly at higher levels. Call money opened at 5½ per cent.

The uneven course of early prices in the stock market was indicated by Mexican Petroleum's loss of 1⅝ points and Baldwin Locomotive's gain of 1½ points. Oils as a group were lower, further selling of Pacific issues being noted. Rails, equipments, motors, chemicals, leathers and textiles strengthened fractionally to 1½ points. Of the speculative steels Vanadium was heaviest, falling 1¾ points. Developments over the week-end seemed to offer little incentive to professional traders.

Pressure increased later as call loans rose to six per cent, Mexican Petroleum extended its loss to six points and other oils as well as motors and utilities were 1 to 4 points lower. The close was weak. Bonds including Liberty were steady.

WHEAT MARKET VARIABLE

Bullish Influences Counter-balanced by Heavier Selling

CHICAGO, Ill.—Expectance of a decrease in the United States visible supply total was a leading bullish factor in the wheat market Monday but this influence was largely counter-balanced by selling on the part of houses with Northwestern connections. Besides, Kansas City reported consignments increasing and milling demand slow. On the other hand scarcity of red winter wheat here continued to attract attention. Opening prices which varied from ⅛c off to ⅛c advance with December $1.08 to ¼ and May $1.12⅝ to $1.13 were followed by slight general gains although a temporary sag intervened.

In later dealings the market fluctuated often but kept within narrow limits. Bearish feeling was somewhat emphasized by word that Buffalo and other eastern mills were inquiring duty-paid Canadian wheat. The close was easy ⅛ to ¼c net lower, with December $1.07⅞ to $1.08 and May $1.12⅝ to ½.

Corn and oats were relatively easy, owing to lack of aggressive support. Corn opened unchanged to ⅛c lower to ⅛c higher, May 53⅜ to 54c and then declined all around to be.ow Saturday's finish.

For the most part trade was of a local character. Prices closed easy the same as Saturday's finish to ⅛c lower with May 53⅜ to ⅝.

Oats started unchanged to ⅛c higher May 38 to ⅜c and later weakened like corn.

Higher quotations on hogs gave something of a lift to provisions.

THE GOLD CURE

An unfortunate man, possessed of a comfortable competency, evidenced various eccentricities, and so his loving relatives tenderly escorted him to a famous neurologist. The latter viewed the patient from several points of the compass, and in due course passed him on to a psychopathologist. This polysyllable expert subjected him to an exhaustive analysis and presently shucked him off onto a psychiatrist. The latter had hardly more than begun his investigation when the patient lost most of his money. Thereat his skin turned him loose, declaring that they had no more time to waste on a darned old crank. And he fell into the hands of a shabby plug of an unknown general practitioner, who gave him a few doses of bitter stuff and cured him for a dollar and sixty cents.—Country Gentleman.

Which is Your Reason?

There are really only four reasons why a man doesn't carry adequate life insurance.

First—He has never given the matter serious thought.

Second—He cannot afford it.

Third—He cannot get it.

Fourth—He doesn't care enough what becomes of his family after he is gone to make a real effort in their behalf while he is here.—Exchange.

Well, Well, Well

Notice—There will be a bean supper at the First Unitarian church on Saturday night, followed by a musical program.—Keene (N. H.) Democrat.

FEDERAL COURT TO CONVENE TUESDAY MORNING IN CITY

Session of Two Weeks is Expected Here With Judge Luse Presiding

United States court will convene in La Crosse at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning for a session which is expected to be concluded inside of two weeks.

Judge C. K. Luse of Superior, appointed to succeed the late Judge A. L. Sanborn in the Western district of Wisconsin, will preside for the first time here.

Five civil cases and a few criminal cases are scheduled to be tried at this term of court. There will be no grand jury here this session, a grand jury at Madison last month having passed upon most of the pending cases. The petit jury, which will hear the actions tried here, is summoned to report at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning.

WETS CRITICIZED FOR VIOLATIONS OF VOLSTEAD ACT

Rev. C. C. Rowlison Dwells Upon Evasions of Law in Sermon Sunday Morning

DECLARES CHRISTIAN PEOPLE WILL NOT COUNTENANCE IT

One of Worst Disgraces in History of the Country

Declaring the evasion of the Volstead act is the most flagrant violation of a national law in the history of this country, Rev. C. C. Rowlison, in a sermon at the First Congregational church Sunday morning, flayed the liquor interests. He spoke on "The Bequest of God and said in part:

"Last Sunday we continued our excursion in Palestine, and spent the day with Jesus in the great out-of-doors. Mediaeval art, which has largely shaped the conception we have of Jesus, gave little heed to his manhood. Pleckhorst and Hoffmann, not to mention more recent artists, have given us wonderful conceptions of his manliness. The return to the gospels as the heart of the Bible has shown how the Lord loved the open.

"Almost with the irresponsibility of a vagabond, the Master went among the villages of Galilee, and there he feels and teaches the joy of life. Here he finds and declares that, in spite of all superficial evidence to the contrary, God is our Father. So that, if we are to understand God our relations to Him, as revealed in the life and teachings of Jesus, this background of his life must ever be in our minds.

"The Fatherhood of God—this doctrine must completely captivate and control our faith, and bring every individual into the joyous consciousness that he is a child of God. He must learn this lesson until, almost recklessly, he shall cease his anxiety about earthly affairs—even about his food and clothing—and with superabounding joy he must go on as a child in His Father's house—as a friend of God, a comrade, a co-worker with God. He is no longer a mere product of the earth, rooting in its soil for a personal livelihood, but a fellow-workman with the creator of all things, with the great architect of the universe.

A Lost Prodigal

"Under the influence of the doctrine of salvation, which no one may ignore or belittle, the Christian world too often has felt itself to be a lost prodigal, and has thought of God as the gracious Being who is saving these whom he will. As I am constantly reminding you, God is to us altogether too much of an oriental monarch. Jesus, in his own experience and in his ministry, gave little emphasis to God as even the beneficient Ruler of the Universe. To him, God is father, comrade, friend. In the most emphatic sense, and such he wanted Him to be to all men.

"Moreover, Jesus did not wait to put his disciples through a psychological process of conversion before they could presume to be God's children. That view come in the development of Christianity as a church after Jesus' day. His method was to awaken in the hearts of men a faith that would cause them to accept as real a status, which was already theirs, if only they would so accept it. If only we could believe, with an unwavering faith, that we are God's children, every anxiety and problem of life would drop away from us, as it dropped away from the Master himself.

Social Disgrace

"No social disgrace has ever been so deeply engraven on occidental life as that of the use of alcoholic liquors. It has done more to cultivate lust, and disrupt families, and degrade childhood, and undermine Christian standards of womanhood, and cause poverty, and debauch politics, and corrupt business standards. Then any other great social custom, unless it is the custom of war itself. Our country decided three years ago that such a social nuisance must be discontinued.

"In the most orderly and approved method of constitutional governments, the United States adopted the eighteenth amendment to the constitution, forbidding the use or exchange of these intoxicants. No other constitutional action was ever taken with equal deliberation by the citizens of America. For three generations, the people were taught the scientific effects, and the moral, economic and political evils accompanying the use of and traffic in alcohol. Deliberately and persistently for many years the churches carried on an open campaign against this evil. In most communions, especially those characteristically American, any minister who was not a total abstainer was not able to maintain good standing in his denomination. The increasingly intelligent womanhood of the country was overwhelmingly opposed to alcoholics of every kind. Physicians in large numbers were denying the slightest benefit arising from the use of alcohol in any form as a medicine. Social workers were practically unanimous in the conclusion that alcoholism was a cause of more crime, poverty and all forms of social lapse than any other one thing, and many thought, than all other causes combined. Manufacturers and industrial organizers and directors became convinced that the use of alcohol was the greatest enemy of efficient labor. War is the only other evil that can begin to compare with alcohol for these devilish honors.

States Pave Way

"Because of these conclusions of the American citizenry, long before this amendment was adopted, many states had constitutionally or legislatively prohibited the use of and the traffic in alcoholic liquor, and in every state large territories, through local option, had adopted this prohibition. With the utmost deliberation, the congress of the United States submitted this eighteenth amendment, and in the most orderly manner it was adopted by the vote of more than two-thirds of the states composing the union.

"It would seem, after all this, that if there were a spark of patriotism left in the heart of the liquor interests, they would have unconditionally surrendered to the decision of the overwhelming majority of the citizens of the republic. As a matter of fact, many individuals have taken exactly that patriotic attitude, even beyond their personal wishes and financial interests. But in the large, this has not been the characteristic attitude of this strongly intrenched enemy of our moral, social and spiritual welfare.

Flagrant Violation

"Does it not seem that, if the principle of constitutional government had the slightest hold upon the advocates of the traffic in alcohol, they would have completely ceased the traffic. Instead, what has been the attitude and action of the liquor interests almost universally? That story is simply told. It has been the most open, the most flagrant, the most persistent violation of the will of the American people. No nullification act of southern slave-holders was ever so unscrupulous and so determined as is that of the liquor interests of the land. If in the past such nullification was called rebellion, if its advocates were adjudged disloyal to American ideals and institutions, what name shall apply to them now?

"After nearly three years of waiting for these interests to adjust themselves to the constitutional requirements, and for the legislatures of the nation to provide adequate means of carrying out the provisions of the amendment, it is now evident that there is no such patriotic motive, and that instead every conceivably means is being used to corrupt our legislatures and even the people themselves.

"One of the worst affiliations of this evil group is in alliance with the perpetuation of war. Everybody knows that there is a small but powerful group of citizens who are advocates of extensive military preparation. Everybody knows that one of the most potent influences against such preparation is the heavy taxation of every citizen in carrying the burden of armaments. It is even more potent than the assured destruction of our sons and daughters in the carnival of war. If Europe and America will keep the burden of taxation squarely on the shoulders of her citizens, where it belongs, those citizens will refuse ere long to carry a soldier around on his back all his life, and will speedily vote disarmament.

After Legislatures

"What is happening? The liquor interests are besieging our legislatures to turn over the burden of taxation to them, as the blood-money for this nullification of the eighteenth amendment, in compromise enforcement legislation.

"Is America going to stand for this supreme affrontery? Is the church of Christ in America, having gained the primary legislative victory in the most orderly adoption of the constitutional amendment, now supinely to submit to this rebellious attitude of the liquor power? Is America, and particularly the American church, now prepared to refuse to inherit the kingdom which God is placing within our grasp? When the evils of alcoholism, and as well the strongest support of the programs of militarism, may now easily be defeated, is the flock of Christ to lie supinely while Christ himself, more cruelly than ever, is nailed to the cross?

"As in the terrible days of the war, when our duty stood out most clearly, the church was recognized by the government as the most powerful patriotic institution of the land; so today that loyalty to American ideals and American institutions will find in the church of Christ its most outspoken and determined expression. The church is not in politics, in the sense of seeking any office, emoluments or special privilege for itself or its representatives. But it is in the world to put the ideals of Jesus and the joy of the kingdom of God into every political institution, and to make those ideals triumphant in all the affairs of men."

DRESSED UP

The English certainly do supply the fancy dress costumes for their diplomatic officials. Here's Lord Reading for example, togged out as grand master of the Order of the Star of India, where he is governor general. He used to be British envoy to the United States. He's having his hands full these days with Indian uprisings.

WAUKEGAN TO HAVE NEW DAILY PAPER

KENOSHA, Wis.—Waukegan, Ill., is to have a new republican newspaper. J. F. Bidinger, mayor of Waukegan, and Frank H. Just, well-known Libertyville, Ills., newspaperman, Monday purchased the plant formerly used by the Kenosha Evening Herald, and it is to be removed to Waukegan with a view of publishing the first issue of the new Waukegan Daily News on the first day of December. Mr. Just will be editor of the new paper and mayor Bidinger will be its business manager. Many prominent business and professional men at Waukegan will be interested in the new company sponsoring the paper.

INVALID CHOKES WIFE

MILWAUKEE, Wis.—Andrew Staubli, 60, of 911 Eighth street, early Monday strangled his wife, Marguerite, to death, according to a story he told George Zollmar, a nephew, who in turn telephoned the police.

Staubli suffered a fall several months ago, and has been in a precarious condition ever since. Members of the family have feared for his mental state. Mrs. Zollmar, wife of Staubli's nephew stated.

GRIMSBY, Eng.—The Grimsby herring trade with Germany has been revived. The first cargo since the war, 600 cases, has been shipped to Hamburg.

Old persons who frequented the circus of forty years ago will remember the "Marvellous Craggs," who were acrobats brought from England to astonish the people of this country. They were top-liners in their day. John Williams Cragg, one of them, is still alive and still doing his stunts in England, although they are not attracting the same attention that they did at that time. He runs a public gymnasium and keeps in good physical trim, and, it is said, he looks like a man in his forties. He is the great-grandfather of eighteen children.

MOTHER!

Move Child's Bowels with "California Fig Syrup"

Hurry mother! Even a sick child loves the "fruity" taste of "California Fig Syrup" and it never fails to open the bowels. A teaspoonful today may prevent a sick child tomorrow. If constipated, bilious, feverish, fretful, has cold, colic, or if stomach is sour, tongue coated, breath bad, remember a good cleansing of the little bowels is often all that is necessary.

Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.
